Having pushed the Navy Line and Marine Corps promotion bills through the House, Representative Vinson plans to obtain favorable action upon the Navy staff bill. That's the spirit, Mr. Chairman!

Was there a defender of the Military Committee when charges of inaction with respect to Army promotion reform were made against it on the floor of the House? There was not. It was suggested that the Army was responsible for the delay in dealing with this important matter. Not so. Ask the War Department.

Still the Legislative Appropriation bill is pending in conference and still officers and men on foreign service are penalized because of the exchange value of the dollar. Debts pile up while Congress hesitates!

Major General Upton Birnie, jr., has reported and assumed his new duty as Chief of Field Artillery. His subordinates welcome his arrival; an improved Army may be predicted from his administration.

In connection with the new naval requirement that photographs accompany fitness reports, may I ask whether the Navy Department contemplates inaugurating a course in phrenology: Will promotion depend upon looks? Don't forget, 'andsome is as 'andsome does!

I am told the House Military Committee has drawn the "deadly parallel" on the testimony of Major General Foulis, Chief of the Air Corps, first the stenographic report and then alongside his corrections. This is unusual and disturbing. Surely the Committee will accept explanations of statements made under the stress of examination.

I am glad to see that Senator Reed has been renominated by the Republicans of Pennsylvania. He can be depended upon to advocate proper National Defense and especially to urge these internal reforms which both Services need.

The House of Representatives has acted so as to reinstate the young midshipmen who failed of commissioning in last year's class. This is a move to render justice which the country is applauding.

Every member of Congress should be provided with accommodations to witness the review of the United States Fleet by the President on May 31. Without congressional authorization there would be no Navy. I hope you will furnish the transportation, Secretary Swanson!

Is the end of the Asiatic Fleet in sight? Secretary Swanson denies it will be ordered home "immediately". And

Increase In Army Put Up to Administration

The question of whether or not the nation shall have more nearly adequate land defenses has been placed squarely before President Roosevelt.

Representative James M. Fitzpatrick, New York Democrat, chairman of the sub-committee of the House Military Affairs committee which has been considering the Thompson bill for the expansion of the Army, has written to the White House asking for the President's views on the bill before proceeding further. Also he has requested an official report from the War Department.

Thus through two channels the matter is up to the administration—Mr. Roosevelt can make or break the bill in his reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick or Budget Director Douglas, who will have to be consulted by Secretary Dern, and who in turn probably would consult the President, can say yes or no.

The personal views of the Secretary of War already are known. He told Representative Fitzpatrick in a letter three weeks ago that he favors the passage of the act, but he added that the opinion was solely his own and did not represent that of the administration nor the Bureau of the Budget which had not been consulted.

The bill also has received the "unqualified approval" of General John J. Pershing. General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army, made an earnest appeal to the committee for its enactment. Col. L. Kemper Williams, Inf-Res., National President of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States, and Col. John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, both appeared before the committee and urged its adoption. Representative Fitzpatrick and Representative McSwain, chairman of committee, both have declared themselves as in favor of the measure.

The bill was introduced about a month ago by Representative Clark W. Thompson, Democrat, of Texas. It authorizes the Army to increase its personnel strength to 14,063 commissioned officers and 165,000 enlisted men, from its present strength of 12,000 officers and 115,000 enlisted men.

Chairman McSwain said yesterday that he plans to have the full committee consider the bill shortly, perhaps next Tuesday. The measure is of great importance, he said, and deserves the attention of the entire committee. The main necessity, Mr. McSwain pointed out, is to get the funds with which to put the bill into effect. As a matter of fact, Mr. McSwain said, full authorization already exists for maintaining an army of the strength specified in the bill but funds are not available. The only part of the bill that provides new authority, he declared, is the provisions which permit the use of reserve officers to fill up the quota of officers while increments of regulars are being commissioned. It is this latter provision which particularly interests Mr. McSwain.

Hits Congress' View of Army

Representative James W. Wadsworth, jr., of New York, gave Congress a verbal lashing this week for its treatment of the Army, particularly for its failure to provide promotion relief.

Mr. Wadsworth's remarks came on May 15, in the course of the House's discussion of the Marine Corps promotion bill, which he commended, but expressed deep regret that the Congress has not seen fit to provide proper promotion for the Army. He was particularly critical of the attitude of Congress in continually dictating the "interior organization" of the Army.

Even though his remarks constituted an indictment against the inaction of the military committee there was no reply from the members of that committee, except from Representative W. Frank James, who rose to deny a statement that there are any 64-year-old lieutenants in the Army "because they have to retire at 64."

Because of his long service as an active and influential member of the Senate Military Affairs committee during his membership in that body, Mr. Wadsworth's views have particular weight

Marine Promotion Bill Speeds Through House

The Marine Corps personnel bill, applying, with modifications, the Navy system of promotion by selection to the Marines, was passed by the House May 15 and sent to the Senate where action is looked for before adjournment.

An increase in the number of major generals carried in the bill was eliminated on the floor of the House and in its present form the measure provides for the same number of general officers as at present. This will probably be the way the final form of the bill, also as Marine Corps Headquarters does not intend to attempt to have the provision reinserted in the Senate. In an effort to get the bill passed before adjournment of Congress the first week or so of June, Headquarters intends to ask the Senate to adopt the bill in the exact form it passed the House.

Objection to the increase in major generals came from Representative Goss, Rep. of Conn., who opposed the section because earlier when the Navy Line personnel bill was up, Representative Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Committee had stated that he intended to bring in legislation at the next session revising the percentages of officers in the various grades and reorganizing the entire naval establishment.

"Unlike the Navy bill, this bill for the Marine Corps attempts to redistribute the officers in grade and rank, and when the Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee had the floor a few moments ago he frankly stated to the House he was going to bring in a bill next year redistributing the officers in grade and rank," stated Representative Goss.

"If this amendment is adopted, as I hope it will be, I am going to offer an amendment to the next section which

House Approves Navy Line Personnel Bill

Legislation to redistribute the percentages of officers in the various grades will follow passage of the Navy Line personnel bill, Chairman Carl Vinson, of the Naval Affairs Committee, told the House this week as it approved the measure.

With scarcely no opposition and not even a record vote required, the personnel bill was passed by the House May 15 and sent to the Senate, where early action is predicted. The bill differs only slightly from the form in which presented to Congress by the Navy Department a month ago. As was expected the provision was withdrawn, which had been inserted by the Naval committee, limiting the number of lieutenants who could be retired to 118 a year.

By amendment on the floor, graduates of the Naval Academy class of 1933 who are otherwise qualified for commission may be appointed notwithstanding the fact that they have married. Navy Regulations prohibit an ensign from marrying during his first two years of commissioned service. This change is acceptable to the Navy Department and an attempt will be made to get the Senate to approve the bill in same form as it passed the House in order that it will not have to go to conference.

During the debate on the bill, Representative Vinson told the House that the increase of the number of smaller ships and the development of technical equipment will require a change in the distribution of officers in rank. He said that the Naval Affairs Committee will give this matter "serious study" at the next session of Congress and will probably bring in a bill on the subject. He said that he also "hoped" to bring in legislation next session to reorganize the entire naval establishment.

Early action by the Senate is predicted by Senator David I. Walsh, acting chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, who is going to push the measure even though he opposes one feature of the bill. Senator Walsh conferred with Representative Vinson on Thursday and states that the Senate committee will meet to consider it today or Monday.

"We will report out the Navy and Marine bills right away," the Senator told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL yesterday. "I feel sure that the Senate will pass both bills before adjournment."

Senator Walsh said he was personally opposed to placing officers who were not selected on the retired list, but that he did not intend to hold the bill on this account.

"I'm not at all keen about a system that puts incompetents on the pension rolls for the rest of their lives," he declared.

In the course of his speech to the House explaining the bill, Representative Vinson said:

"Of course you know that the present authorized line-officer strength of the Navy is 5,499. This strength is distributed

Editors Comment on Matters of Interest to Personnel of the Army and Navy

Matters of interest to the personnel of the armed services have been the subject of comment in the editorial columns of leading newspapers of late.

"A plucking board of the army has before it the painful duty of getting almost 300 officers out of the service," states the Worcester, Mass., Telegram, "Congress made no provision for their retention."

"Let's hope that the 300 who are 'plucked' will be captains. Not that there is anything against army captains, any more than there is against generals and privates. But there happens to be a 'hump' in the officer lists right where the captains come. This hump is a result of the World War, and the sudden acquisition of thousands of new regular officers. Most of these men went in as second lieutenants and now have become captains. Since the rank has hundreds of officers who have not enjoyed the benefits of a West Point education, and who seem inept at the examinations for promotion beyond the rank, the tendency is to keep more captains in the army than the army needs."

States the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Times-Leader: "The United States has been pretty badly disturbed by casualties in its army air force of late. It might be worth noticing that Japan's air force, which has not had to carry any mail bags, has been having an even more difficult time. During the past month 17 Japanese army and navy flyers have been killed in airplane crashes. The tragedies are the result of vigorous training maneuvers which have been carried out this winter. Japan is bending every effort to get ready for trouble. Evidently she has been putting her airmen through a course of sprouts a little bit too stiff."

"Whatever the airmail venture may have shown about defects in American army planes or personnel, it is apparent that Japan's flying corps is in even worse shape. The American air force at least is able to carry on its regular war training maneuvers without wholesale tragedies."

House Passes Marine Bill

will make section 3 conform to present law, and then next year, when we bring in the Navy bill, the Marine Corps bill can be considered in the light of the Navy bill and with the same distribution of the commissioned officers in grades.

"If we do not do this, if this is the final bill for the Marine Corps, then section 16 should be stricken. However, I do not believe, in view of the fact that it has not gone to the Budget, it should be stricken."

"I am in accord with the amendment offered by the gentleman," stated Representative Goss, "and I would like an approval from the Budget and see section 16 stricken out. Then that would make a perfect bill. But, unfortunately, it cannot pass the Budget and section 16 must remain in the bill."

"I shall not offer an amendment to do that, although I think, in view of the redistribution of officers in grade and rank, we should do that," replied Mr. Goss.

"I think we should take care of that in the future," stated Mr. Vinson. "I am in accord with the gentleman's two amendments."

The amendment was agreed to.

The decision to delay action on the question of the number of general officers may result in elimination of section 16 of the bill at the next session of Congress. With Congress giving consideration to sweeping changes in the naval establishment, repeal of that proviso might be effected.

It is section 16 which involves the greatest differences from the Navy system. The bill declares that the Navy system shall apply to the Marine Corps and then sets forth exceptions. The present system in the Navy is what is contemplated in the bill and selection is instituted for promotion in the upper three ranks comparable to the Navy ranks which have selection. However, to avoid increasing the budget, Section 16 was inserted which nullifies provisions for the enforced retirement of officers not selected for promotion. It also denies to officers promoted under the bill the pay of the higher rank until the time they would have attained that higher rank under existing law.

Inasmuch as the bill applies to the Marine Corps all Navy laws regarding personnel hereafter enacted as well as those now on the statute books, the Navy line personnel bill, also passed by the House May 15, will effect the Marine, providing both measures become law. The Navy provides for extending selection downward two grades, and would institute in the Marines, selection to captain and major instead of promotion by seniority. As section 16 specifically refers only to the grades of major and lieutenant colonel in preventing enforced retirements, passage of the two bills would result in the retirement of first lieutenants and captains who have not been selected for promotion.

Aside from the elimination of the increased number of major generals, only two amendments were made on the floor of the House. One of these provides that in computing commissioned service, active duty in the National Naval Volunteers shall be computed as well as active duty in the Marine Corps Reserve. The other does not affect the bill. It repeals existing law which sets the minimum age for enlistment in the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve at 18 years and prescribes that the minimum age shall be that prescribed for the Regular Navy and Marine Corps.

and respect on matters concerning the Army.

"The Congress, generally speaking, has taken a quite difference attitude toward the Navy and the Marine Corps than it has taken over a long period of years toward the Army," Mr. Wadsworth said. "Students of military history and of the debates in the Congress with respect to military subjects will generally find that the average citizen in the United States and the average Member of Congress is perfectly ready and willing to admit that he could not command a battleship, but there are thousands and thousands of civilians who have been confident, as a general rule, at least up until the World War, that they could command a regiment of infantry. It has been the tradition of the American people that the command of soldiers was a comparatively easy thing, and that was the cause of getting us into many wars, causing the loss of thousands and thousands of lives and the expenditure of billions out of the Treasury."

"It was not until 1920, when the National Defense Act was revised, that any important steps were taken to give the Army a chance to govern the Army in its interior organization and to bring

"Every time a man enlists in the army it means there is one less applicant for civil life employment," says the Memphis Commercial Appeal. "Those urging reduction of the military personnel and opposing the comparatively small increase sought by General MacArthur, the chief of staff, might bear that in mind. A large standing army is not the terrible thing the pacifists would make of it. It is equally effective as an economic adjunct or as a weapon for national security."

"Very recently General MacArthur made the assertion that due to assignments to conservation camps regular army training had been brought to a virtual standstill and had almost destroyed the effectiveness of units for emergency service."

"If that be true then it has taken very little to disrupt the regular establishment. The conservation camps have not been a great numerical drain. The trouble with the army is that it is undermanned both in officer and enlisted personnel. An increase in strength to a size justified by the size of the nation and the wealth which the army must guard would be highly effective for economic recovery and re-employment."

"When history is written of the new deal and 'new dealers' in Hawaii the name of Major Stanley L. Scott, USA, US district engineer, will be linked with one of the busiest periods of building in the history of the territory," declares the Honolulu Advertiser.

"The local administrator of the public works program is a quiet, unassuming officer of the United States Army whose outward appearance is deceiving to those who do not know him so well. Under the surface, there lies a veritable dynamo that has driven him to many outstanding accomplishments since he graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in 1916."

"One cannot talk with Major Scott without becoming convinced with his earnestness and his efficiency."

"This cog in the new deal knows his job and knows how to carry it out."

It up-to-date. You would be surprised—and I am saying this as raising a contrast between the way Congress has treated the Navy, wisely so, I believe, as compared with the way it has treated the Army—to know that prior to the World War, indeed upon the date on which we went into the World War, the laws of the United States prescribed the exact number of men that should constitute a company of infantry. There should be 1 first sergeant, 9 line sergeants, 10 or 12 corporals, so many privates (first class), and so many privates, and the Army was not permitted in its interior organization to change its own tactical organization in the slightest degree without an act of Congress.

"I have sat with a committee in the House and listened to a debate between Members of that body lasting 3 hours as to whether a company of Signal Corps troops should be increased by the addition of one technical sergeant. That all had to be wiped out when we went into the World War. It caused unutterable confusion. The same thing is true with respect to promotions in the Army."

"Some of us were exceedingly anxious back in 1920 to install the selection system of promotions in the Army, but an overwhelming majority of our colleagues in the Congress said 'No; we cannot trust the Army to run its own promotion system.' The Navy is being trusted as it should be. You are giving to these selection boards, as you should, the power to promote officers. You do not let the Secretary of the Navy have anything to do with the matter. Not even the President of the United States has anything to do with the promotion of officers in the Navy. You are now going to make it that way in the Marine Corps. Personally I believe in it, and I would welcome the day when the Congress of the United States would confer this trust upon the Army and let the Army select its officers for promotion. There is a hump in the promotion list of the Army worse than now exists in the Marine Corps."

Representative Vinson of Georgia, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee remarked, "As a matter of fact, it was stated by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Collins), in presenting the military appropriations bill, that there are lieutenants 64 years of age in the Army."

"Yes," Mr. Wadsworth replied, "But of course they are exceptions. The average age of the Army officer grade by grade is going up by leaps and bounds. They are traveling along the same road with respect to age as the Marine Corps is now traveling, and the Army is reaching that same point of overaged men, especially in the lower grades. I express the hope, in taking advantage of this opportunity, that something may be done for the Army in the same way."

"Does not the gentleman believe," Representative Darden asked "that that is the fault of the Army rather than of the Congress? Does not the gentleman think that failure to enact such legislation is due to pressure brought on Members of the Congress by the officer personnel of the Army?"

"That has not been my experience. I think the Army would welcome it," Mr. Wadsworth asserted.

The discussion continued as follows: Mr. Wadsworth. "The Army has always been governed by law down to the details of its interior organization to an extent that the Navy and Marine Corps never have been, and one reason for the extraordinary effectiveness of the Marine Corps as an expeditionary force is that there has never been any law of Congress governing its interior organization."

Mr. McFarlane. "Has that matter ever been studied in the appropriate committee? It seems to me the gentleman's statements are very pertinent and I believe the matter should be gone into very carefully by the proper committees of Congress so as to permit the consideration of a promotion bill similar to the bills for the Navy and the Marine Corps."

Mr. Wadsworth. "I have not had the honor of being a member of the House Committee on Military Affairs. But in the other body, in the Committee on Military Affairs on which I served, the matter was given great study and many of us wanted to do this, but we ran up against a stone wall in the Congress itself at that time."

Mr. James. "Will the gentleman yield?"

Mr. Wadsworth. "I yield."

Mr. James. "I may say that, of course, there is no second lieutenant in the Army 64 years of age, because they have to retire at 64."

Mr. Vinson of Georgia. "If the gentleman will yield, if my memory does not serve me falsely, that is my recollection of a statement made by the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Collins)."

Mr. James. "Well, that is not true."

Mr. Britten. "Frankly, I disagree with my distinguished colleague from New York (Mr. Wadsworth), when he says that it was the Congress that stopped selection in the Army. The real cause was the pull of a few individuals in the Army who reached Congress and prevented selection. Selection should prevail in the Army just as it is going to prevail from now on in the Marine Corps and just as it has prevailed for 18 years in the Navy, because it means efficiency. It stands for reward of merit; and if a man is good, if he is capable, if his superiors like him, if he is an outstanding officer, he ought to be promoted. If he does not have all these qualifications, he should be retired and put off the pay roll, so he can make room for some other youngster who comes up from below and who is efficient and will deliver when the time comes for him to do so."

Army Air Mail Ends

When 2nd Lt. Clyde H. Wood, Air-Reserve, landed at Newark Airport at 7:06 P. M., Wednesday evening, May 16, after an air mail trip from Jacksonville with eight intermediate stops, the Army's air mail carrying ended.

It was Lieutenant Wood's first trip over the entire route. His regular station is Selfridge Field, Mich., and he was assigned to the final run in order to return him quickly to his home station.

In addition to the air mail speed records set by the Army, a new non-loss record was established during the flying of the mail by the Army Air Corps. Since Feb. 17, when the Army began carrying the air mail, not a single ounce of air mail has been lost. Post Office officials have informed Maj. B. Q. Jones, commanding the Eastern Zone, that this is a record for the air mail.

Army pilots point out that the Air Corps brought its air mail operations to a close with five air mail speed records to its credit. These are for the San Francisco-to-Newark, the Chicago-to-Cleveland, the Cleveland-to-Newark, the Newark-to-Boston, and the Jacksonville-to-Newark routes.

Lt. Elwood Quesada established the Cleveland-Newark mark, averaging 243 miles an hour for the 406-mile run. Maj. B. Q. Jones, the Eastern Zone commander, set the Newark-to-Boston record of 48 minutes for the 205 miles. The Jacksonville-Newark speed mark was hung up by Lt. Charles W. O'Connor, who covered the route in four hours, 34 minutes, flying time.

Salt Lake City, Utah—One hundred officers, two hundred fifty-seven enlisted men and eighty airplanes of the Western Zone, Army Air Corps Mail Operations are returning to their home stations from various control points in the eleven states comprising the Western Zone. Every plane being returned to the numerous Army stations west of the Mississippi River, from which they were commandeered when the Army started carrying the mail on Feb. 19, is loaded with personnel and supplies which have been used in air mail activities during the last two months. Other personnel are being returned to their homes by rail and private automobiles.

Orders issued required that, within forty-eight hours, all air mail personnel and planes not needed at Route or Zone Headquarters for evacuation activities would be on their way to their home stations. The speed and precision with which the Army air mail system of the West was organized almost overnight in February has been repeated in the closing chapter of one of the outstanding peace-time activities of Air Corps history.

More than 300,000 pounds of mail was carried during the 68 days in which the Air Corps operated the mail service in the Western Zone. During this period of time approximately 615,000 miles were flown in actual mail carrying activities and a distance nearly equal to this was covered in administrative flights, training flights, and the rapid transportation of supplies and personnel throughout the West in order to keep the organization running smoothly. These combined distances, equal to more than fifty times around the world, were carried out through weather conditions varying from ideal to the worst in aviation history. Not a life was lost in the Western Zone while mail was being carried. Lt. Col. H. H. Arnold, Zone Commander, commended Route Commanders and other Army personnel on their splendid spirit of loyalty and cooperation.

Consider Navy Staff Bill

Having disposed of the Navy Line and Marine Corps personnel bills, the House Naval Affairs Committee next week will turn their attention to the promotion problems of the Navy Staff Corps.

The committee announced this week that hearings will be started Monday, May 21 on HR 9200, the Staff personnel bill introduced a month ago by Representative Carl Vinson. The measure is identical with HR 14465 submitted to Congress by the Navy Department in the last Congress and while not sponsored by the Department at the present session has received its endorsement.

Some time ago the Navy Department decided not to submit the Staff bill at this session, but when Chairman Vinson introduced it himself and sent it to the Department for recommendation, Secretary Swanson gave it his endorsement, declaring "the reasons and recommendations contained in the previous recommendation are fully applicable at present."

Secretary Swanson asked that the bill be amended in one particular. Section 6, which provides that commanders and lieutenant commanders shall be ineligible for consideration by a selection board after having been considered by three boards and have completed, respectively, 30 and 25 years' service, should be amended, he asked, to make different provision for officers of the Medical and Dental Corps. Officers of these two Corps, it was stated, should be ineligible for selection after 28 years' service in the case of commanders and 21 years in the case of lieutenant commanders, because of having entered the service as lieutenants, junior grade, instead of as ensigns.

The bill would amend the 1926 Staff Corps Equalization Act, increasing in most Corps the number of officers allowed in the ranks of commander and captain and provide for the enforced retirement of officers not selected for promotion. The number of rear admirals allowed the Staff Corps is not increased, but the bill permits the selection of Staff captains for advancement to rear admiral upon being transferred to the retired list.

With adjournment expected during the first week of June, sponsors of the bill do not have much hope for its passage this session.

Foreign Duty Tours

The House on Monday will consider the Senate bill repealing the minimum limit for foreign service tours for the Army and Navy, and instituting a maximum two-year tour on foreign stations for officers and enlisted men of the Army.

An attempt to bring up the bill which was passed by the Senate last week, was made in the House this week but was blocked. Sponsors of the bill then secured permission to bring up the bill under suspension of the rules on Monday.

Naval Air Station

The House this week passed H. R. 6847 which authorizes the procurement of additional land for the Naval Air Station at Hampton Roads, Va.

National Guard Aviation

Reviewing the minimum requirements for the proper training this year of the 19 National Guard Aviation Squadrons, Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, stated this week that the essentials immediately needed are:

Not less than 76 of the most advanced type of observation airplanes, equipped with two-way radio and modern navigation instruments.

General Leach said that a large portion of his present allotment of observation planes have been on loan to the Regular Army for use in carrying the mails, and that several of these ships have been "washed out" which further reduces the present day aviation equipment of the National Guard.

"It is proposed," General Leach added, "to use the National Guard apportionment of the $1,000,000 allotted for airplane accessories for the Regular Army and National Guard to complete the National Guard airplane radio program and to purchase the additional fifty artificial horizons and fifty gyro directional indicators. If the seventy-six airplanes when transferred are equipped with radio and navigation instruments, our requirements for these accessories will then be seventy-six airplane sets and nineteen ground sets, fifty artificial horizons and fifty gyro directional indicators."

"It is therefore recommended that the Regular Army procure out of their authorized funds immediately for delivery to the National Guard, seventy-six observation airplanes from present existing sources; these airplanes to have a performance equal to those now with the National Guard and to be fully equipped with the latest type radio and navigation instruments; if possible these airplanes to be delivered during the fiscal year 1935.

"It is recommended that the appropriation of $1,000,000 to purchase National Guard airplanes be used in an effort to purchase a new design observation airplane with higher performance than those now in use.

"That the National Guard apportionment of $1,000,000 to be used for the purchase of airplane accessories for the Regular Army and National Guard, be used to purchase seventy-six airplane radio sets, nineteen ground radio sets, fifty artificial horizons and fifty gyro directional indicators."

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL Salutes:

Lt. Frederick R. Weber, Inf., USA, who won the silver Arthur Lyons medal in the American Outdoor Epee Championship.

Rear Adm. Luke McNamee, USN, upon his retirement from active duty after 46 years in his country's service.

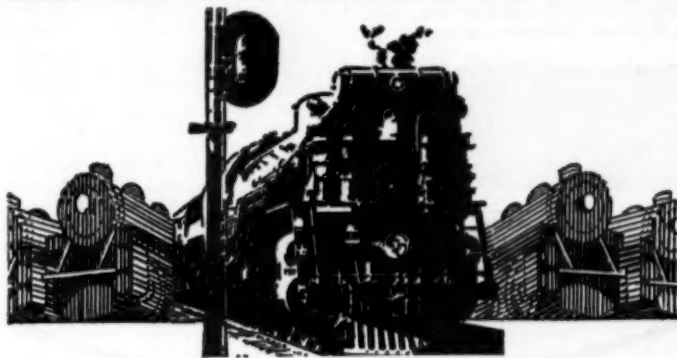

Midshipman William Alden Brockett, U. S. Naval Academy, who has been declared winner of the Class of '31 sword for proficiency in practical and theoretical ordnance and gunnery.

New Duties for General Pershing

As a part of the President's program to reorganize the executive agencies of the government the administration of all national cemeteries and memorials in Europe has been transferred to the American Battle Monuments Commission, of which Gen. John J. Pershing is chairman.

The transfer became effective May 21 when the functions exercised by the War Department in this respect will be assumed by the Commission.

Heretofore the commission has been engaged chiefly in the construction of chapels and memorials in Europe and the beautification of the cemeteries by landscaping and other features, while their maintenance has been under the jurisdiction of the War Department. By consolidating these activities and placing them under the commission the President not only brings about a more economical administration of the work, but also is able to utilize the experience and services of General Pershing and of the Commission which has been most intimately concerned with the development of the cemeteries and memorials abroad.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Ft. Sill Honors General Scott

Ft. Sill, Okla.—In honor of the late Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, U. S. Army, the south entrance to the Ft. Sill, Military Reservation on the Lawton-Fort Sill Boulevard has been designated as Scott Gate.

General Scott served at Fort Sill, as a Lieutenant and as a Captain of the 7th Cavalry and also as Post Quartermaster during the period 1889 to 1897. Captain Scott's troop of Indian Scouts was organized by him at this Post and was considered the most successful of the several troops of scouts organized at that time. As Post Quartermaster, Captain Scott repaired and enlarged Officers' quarters; constructed water tanks, and pump house, and installed the refrigerating plant.

He was instrumental in causing the Apache prisoners to be moved from their place of confinement in Alabama to Ft. Sill where for many years they engaged in agriculture, built homes and prospered. Later due to Captain Scott's efforts, they were returned to their former homes in Arizona.

He was an ardent student of Indian Languages and customs and hence during the period he was stationed at Fort Sill, his services were invaluable in maintaining peace between the white settlers and the Indian tribes of the Indian territory.

Show Automotive Equipment

Ft. Sill, Okla. — Difficult Motorized draft and Field expedients for members of the Advanced Class, Battery Officer's Class, Advanced Class in motors and the Special Motor Mechanics' Class was demonstrated here recently under the direction of Major J. E. Lerof's, Directive, Dept. of Materiel. The ability to negotiate difficult places with modern and war time equipment is a function of many elements. These elements were demonstrated and explained to over a hundred spectators.

The first exhibition was a difficult driving test in which skillful driving and traction of the vehicles were the paramount requirements. The test involved ascending and descending a slope of approximately 20% and was tried with several modern one and one half ton trucks with capacity loads and trailing a gun, some equipped with Galanot or Hipkins tracks and others without tracks.

Other features of the demonstration depicted methods of crossing a sunken road. Descent of steep banks showing methods and possibilities. One of the banks negotiated was of 50% grade and about 75 feet long with necessary fording of the creek at the bottom. Momentum as a means of negotiating difficult places was demonstrated.

Field expedients were shown by the Academic Division Motor Shop, consisting of fording a stream by a battery equipped vehicle, the vehicle being entirely submerged in the water. Use of the "A" frame in extricating a vehicle from a hole. Use of wheel mats in crossing short slippery places. Use of grouser ropes and chains. Use of capstan principle in extricating a stalled vehicle utilizing the dual wheels as the drum for the cable. Use of the grouser bar on a tractor in which the ground between the tracks of a mired tractor is used by means of a bar attached to the tracks by means of chains of proper length. The chains in this method must be long enough to insure speed in attaching or removing the bar but not long enough to permit the bar to slide off the tracks to either side.

Comparison of draft and different ways of hitching for most power and traction depicting various uses of blocks and towing cable. Difficult draft was explained and practiced in removing a 155 mm gun weighing 14 tons which was submerged about 4 feet in soft mud with the use of three ten ton tractors.

Army Relief Society

A picture of the important work of the Army Relief Society is given in the annual report of its Committee on Relief, made public this week. More than five hundred persons, families of Army personnel are cared for each month through the financial and personal services contributed by the members of the Society, it was stated.

The Committee on Relief declared that the past year had been an unusually busy one but they were able to report that no case coming within the Society's charter had been refused help. The report follows:

Madam President and Members of the Army Relief Society:

I have the honor to present the Report of the Relief Committee of the Army Relief Society for the year ending April, 1934. It has been a busy year and an unusual number of emergencies have had to be met upon the death of soldiers or officers of our Army. No case coming under our Charter has been refused help. Constructive and helpful case work has been done and we can look with pleasure upon a year spent in giving assistance to our needy ones, the widows and orphans of the regular army.

Two hundred and ten families are receiving the monthly Army Relief Society allowance today, more than five hundred people are being cared for each month. On the list of beneficiaries are one hundred and twenty-three dependents of enlisted men's families, 64 dependents of officers' families, 18 single women, and 7 Warrant Officers' families. They are living in all parts of the United States and you are apt to meet them anywhere but will not recognize them because the confidential nature of the Army Relief Society assistance to them, allows of only a few knowing who they are. Listed according to the branches of the service to which the men of our beneficiaries belong, they are as follows:

Infantry 78, Cavalry 23, Artillery 38, Quartermaster Corps 30, Medical Corps 13, Signal Corps 1, Engineers 4, Chemical Warfare 1, Ordnance 3, Air Corps 7, Philippine Scouts 3.

To them has gone an average of about $7000. each month. There are 60 widows without children, and 133 widows with 300 children. Three are the widows of colored soldiers. Many are very old, the oldest being a widow of a General who had her 89th Birthday last fall. Six widows have died this year. One was of distinguished ancestry and is buried at an army post near her relatives. One lonely daughter of an officer, dying, bequeathed the Army Relief Society a small legacy.

This year, one widow was placed in a home for old ladies, due to the cooperation of the Y. W. C. A. The latter and the Red Cross worked with us in various cities, whenever we needed special investigation. It is always necessary that we supplement our constructive advice with money, and a constant interchange of letters and close keeping in touch with all who receive A. R. S. help continues indefinitely. The Vice Chairman, Mrs. Arthur Poillon, the Assistant Chairman, Mrs. E. S. Cushman, and the Chairman, each handle about 70 cases, and keep track of the lives of these people. The letters have not been counted but in the summer an average of 600 are written. Ten meetings of the Committee were held, with an average attendance of twelve. These women judge the cases individually, and give the opinion that helps in sending adequate assistance to our beneficiaries. We pay rent, food, clothing, back bills, taxes in arrears, dental, hospital and nurses' expenses for our own and this year, a glass eye was ordered for an older woman, and a widow in a small town even asked the chairman to buy for her here in New York, a hearing device. We have daily letters of gratitude, prayers are said for you constantly, and on holidays like Easter and Christmas, this large family of beneficiaries send you their greetings and thanks.

The mother of a family writes: "My oldest boy enlisted and is in Honolulu, my 21-year-old daughter has a position and does not live at home, my second son is at West Point, my third son is finishing high school, where he takes an active part in athletics and has a paper route, and the two little girls are well, and good in school. I am the homemaker and keep the family going."

Another writes: "I want to thank you for your kind letter. I have done as you told me about your budget. It has been dreadful for us with two sudden deaths—husband and son—in fourteen months, and I wonder why I am living. But with your help we go on and have had courage put into us—" This from a mother we have been helping to keep her home together.

"I felt cheerless and helpless before my call upon you, but when I received the Army Relief Society check I knew that you had my own welfare at heart." The pension cut has grievously affected the lives of many of our beneficiaries, who are extremely brave and have cut down to bed-rock in their expenditures. Some of our widows have had their pensions increased from four to sixteen dollars and as a result the Army Relief Society check has been reduced to them, in this amount.

An officer's widow writes—"The generosity of the Society is one of the most beautiful aids to the moneyless, bewildered army widow; I can never give it too much grateful praise" She says: "Just a few days ago, the wife of a well-to-do major said to me, she did know why they paid into that Society every year—but they never had known what it did, how the money was spent. It was my great opportunity. I plainly stated my own case and told her how whole families were helped without betraying the confidence of the needy applicants, with utmost courtesy and friendly good will and advice through the entire period of assistance. Well, she exclaimed, I am truly enlightened, and after this I shall do all I can to help such worthy work."

This is what we wish all Army people could realize—that their society for helping their own needy is truly doing a wonderful piece of work, without salaried employees or overhead expense.

During this year we have helped more than fifty with emergency assistance; many of these are widows who later have gone to their families and needed no further help. Some of our beneficiaries (Continued on Next Page) diaries have come back on the list for temporary assistance, and, to one of our widows with four children, living in a cold climate, we send, during the winter months an extra amount that she may have adequate heating in her house. Six women wrote that they had received their pensions and no longer needed our help. Five women or their children secured work and voluntarily came off the list. One widow, with her bonus money from a State, returned to England.

One of our most deserving women of splendid character, has six children; her little house cost $1200. She paid $200, down and $15. monthly takes care of the expense as rent. Light is $3., water $1.50, insurance on every member of the family $7.50! furniture installment $8., medical cost $3., dental cost $5., groceries $50., emergencies $5. The children go to free clinics when possible—one boy has a paper route; they buy food at wholesale; clothing is supplied by the Army Relief Society and relatives; all the children go to school and the mother keeps the house and says she has time for recreation. This, no a pension of $50. and $50. from the Army Relief Society.

From a letter on the Editorial page of a New York daily, we were able to trace that the widow of an army man was in need. He had served in all the Wars and retired, bought a little house and his widow was receiving $30. But the pension cut so affected her, that she was just about to go on City relief, having had her taxes to pay, when a member of the Committee visited her and we have since given her help and courage for money was not the only thing she needed.

One likes to think of five motherless children we help, so that they are now living happily with a relative in California. The story is, that some years ago, the father was drowned; he was a sergeant; and after the emergency check, the mother was able to manage living near an Army post. Two years elapsed, when the mother died. Again, the commanding officer of that post wrote us and asked that we give the money to help these children to go to their relatives. No further assistance was given them, nor was it necessary.

Each case receives individual attention, and a great deal of loving sympathy and understanding goes to our beneficiaries. There are members of the Committee and of the Board in other cities that help with the work and to them and to each of you should go a certain amount of praise for what you do to further the work. An entirely new index of all the cases has been made this year.

Since the last meeting we have lost two of our oldest and best loved members—Mrs. Emerson Liscum and Mrs. Edmund Banks Smith, greatly beloved by the Army.

Thanks are expressed to each and everyone who has helped with the work. In San Francisco especially, under the direction of Mrs. Malin Craig, Miss Laura McKinstry, Mrs. Emory Adams, Mrs. Carol Devol, Mrs. Leroy Bartlett, and Mrs. Orrin Wolfe give much time to the beneficiaries on the West coast. And in other cities in the country and among the wives of commanding officers at Army Posts, there are increasing numbers of women to whom the work appeals, and who give the Army Relief Society the opportunity of serving the needy ones that come to their attention.

To Commission Minneapolis

The heavy cruiser Minneapolis will be placed in commission at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, where she has been under construction, by the Commandant of the Fourth Naval District, Rear Adm. Arthur J. Hepburn, USN, this morning.

Capt. Gordon W. Haines, USN, will be the Commanding Officer of the Minneapolis. The dimensions of the cruiser are: length overall, 610 feet; extreme beam, 66 feet; displacement, 10,000 tons; calibre of largest guns, 8-inch; complement, 551 men. She has a designed speed of 33 knots and will carry 4 planes.

The Minneapolis will carry a total of 34 commissioned officers, 9 warrant officers and a crew of 551 men. The following is a list of the heads of departments of the ship: Comdr. John R. Beardall, USN—Executive Officer. Comdr. Elroy L. Vanderkloot, USN—Damage Control Officer and First Lieutenant. Lt. Comdr. Marion Y. Cohen, USN—Navigator. Lt. Comdr. Charles Antrobus, USN—Engineer Officer. Lt. Comdr. Jeffrey C. Metzel, USN—Gunnery Officer. Lt. William W. Behrens, USN—Assistant Damage Control Officer.

The employment of the Minneapolis, after commissioning, until the date of reporting for duty with the U. S. Fleet, is as follows:

May 19-June 20—Completion of the ship. Fitting out period at Navy Yard, Philadelphia. Preliminary tests and trials as required, and as desired by the Commandant and/or the Commanding Officer. Completion of items not finished upon commissioning, in accordance with availability assigned. Base on Philadelphia.

June 21-Sept. 23—Shakedown period, including operations at sea prior to commencing shakedown cruise. No schedule has as yet been arranged for this cruise.

Sept. 24-Oct. 23—Operations based on Hampton Roads or other East Coast port if desired. Tests and trials as directed, or as desired. Material Inspection by Board of Inspection and Survey.

Oct. 24-Jan. 31, 1935—At Navy Yard, Philadelphia, and at sea for trials. Docking and preparation for final trials. Final trials under Board of Inspection and Survey. Completion of authorized work. Completion of all preparations for joining Fleet.

Feb. 1, 1935—Depart Navy Yard, Philadelphia, and report by despatch to the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Fleet.

Admiral Standley Praises Fleet

On his departure for Washington this week, after several weeks with the Fleet, Admiral William H. Standley, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, expressed "great pride in the personnel who man the Fleet" and declared he felt confidence and security "in the exceptional state of efficiency and readiness in which I find the Fleet despite the existing shortage to personnel".

The Commander-in-Chief, Admiral David F. Sellers, transmitted Admiral Standley's message to the Fleet. It follows:

"Upon the conclusion of my cruise with the Fleet I desire to express to you and through you to the officers and men of the Fleet my keen gratification at the intense interest all have shown in the work at hand and in the loyal and efficient manner in which it has been carried out. The conduct of the men in Panama was such as to reflect the highest credit upon them and the Navy. I cannot but take great pride in the personnel who man the Fleet and voice the confidence and security that I feel in the exceptional state of efficiency and readiness in which I find the Fleet despite the existing shortage of personnel. The heart of every citizen on the Atlantic seaboard must beat a little faster when they see their splendid Fleet during its coming visit. My best wishes for a happy cruise."

Admiral Standley left from Guantanamo, Cuba, May 14 for Miami, Fla., in a Navy patrol plane. He was joined at Miami by Rear Adm. Ernest J. King, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and is flying to Washington in a new Curtiss "Condor".

Admiral Standley, and Rear Admiral King are making the following inspections while enroute Miami to Washington:

Opa-Locka (Miami)—mooring facilities for rigid airships (USS Macon has been using this mast at Opa Locka as a base during the period in which she is operating with the Fleet).

Naval Air Station, Pensacola—Inspection of aviation equipment and training. Augusta, Ga.—Stop will be made for purposes of inspection of Marine and aviation facilities at Paris Island.

Charleston, S. C.—Inspection of the Navy Yard.

Norfolk, Va.—Inspection of Naval Air Station and Naval Operating Base.

They are due to arrive in Washington this afternoon.

Aleutian Survey Starts

Secretary of the Navy Swanson has announced that the departure of the Aleutian Island Survey Expedition from Bremerton, Wash., took place May 8.

Questioned whether the establishment of a naval station in the islands was contemplated, Secretary Swanson declared: "We are not considering it now. We are making a survey now and I will not make any statement further than that. We will wait until the survey comes in."

This is the third year that the Navy has been engaged in making surveys of the Aleutian Islands and Alaska. Larger vessels and a greater number are being used this year than before. The expedition is under the command of Rear Adm. Sinclair Gannon, USN, and is composed of the minelayer Oglala, four minesweepers and the storeship Sirius. The oiler Ramapo will join later.

USNA Prize Winner

Annapolis, Md.—Midshipman Thomas Kenneth Callister, First Class, whose home address is Salt Lake City, Utah, has been declared the winner of the van Dyke Prize. This prize consists of a gold watch, and is presented to the member of each graduating class who submits the best original article on any naval or equally patriotic subject.

The above prize will be presented at the Presentation of Awards Dress Parade next June week.

Navy Line Bill: A Criticism

(The following article discussing the pending Navy line personnel bill was written by a naval officer on duty with the Fleet, in conjunction with several other officers who are affected by the bill.)

The situation of the junior officers of the line of the Navy from the Naval Academy class of 1919 through the class of 1928 as regards the prospects for promotion and future advancement in the Service is so desperate that the officers of these depressed classes will welcome any legislation which shows any prospect of improving their condition.

Under the laws now governing promotion in the Navy, the 3,076 officers of this group, much more than half of the authorized strength of the Line of the Navy, are faced with wholesale retirement by groups and classes upon completion of 21 years of service with large numbers of them never becoming eligible for examination by a Selection Board for selection to the rank of commander, for the Britten Act requires that officers, in order to be eligible for selection to commander, must have served four years in the rank of lieutenant-commander prior to having completed 21 years of service. Nearly all of the 3,076 officers of this group are faced with the prospect, through no fault of their own, of not being promoted to the rank of lieutenant-commander in time to fulfill this provision of the law.

For this reason, these officers welcome any legislation which will help to improve the grievous situation in which they find themselves. Specifically, they welcome the chief feature of the Navy Line Personnel Bill as introduced in the House by Mr. Vinson and in the Senate by Senator Trammell; i. e., extension of the selection feature of promotion down to the ranks of lieutenant-commander and lieutenant and provision that officers shall be selected in these ranks by the time they have completed 14 years and 7 years of service respectively. Most of these officers enthusiastically endorse this basic idea.

Action in the present session of Congress is imperative, for each year of delay only aggravates the extremely critical situation. More officers pass on into the rank of lieutenant-commander without scrutiny by a Selection Board, further jamming up the promotion list and depressing the officers junior to them. Real as this necessity for early action is, there are certain features of the Navy Line Personnel Bill as reported by the Naval Affairs Committee to the House of Representatives that are decidedly discriminatory and terribly unfair to whole groups of officers. These will be considered in detail.

To retain on the active list as extra numbers officers passed over for lieutenant and lieutenant-commander is considered as most undesirable, if not decidedly detrimental to the morale of the Navy. The Bill as reported to the House limited retirements in any one year so severely that such retention would result. Mr. Vinson's statement before the House Rules Committee indicated that the Committee amendment limiting the number of retirements of lieutenants in any one year would be withdrawn because it would result in an increase in the Navy budget, rather than a decrease. For the additional reason that retention of passed over lieutenants on the retired list for a number of years would be very detrimental to the Navy morale, this is a sound change. (Note: Since this article was written the House has passed the bill with the retirement limitation provision eliminated. Ed.)

But unless additional safeguards are written into the Bill, it will operate disastrously to the interests of a large group of officers who are professionally quite capable and in some cases outstanding, merely because they would, under the provisions of the Bill, come up for immediate selection or retirement. Being in the Caribbean with the Fleet.

It has been impossible for me to obtain accurate information as to the Bill, but from accounts seem to indicate that it provide either:

First Provision: "That no officer of said rank shall become so ineligible prior to June 30 of the first calendar year following the date of this Act",

Second Provision: "That no officer of said rank shall become so ineligible prior to June 30 of the second calendar year following the date of this Act".

To permit a complete study of the situation, let us add the following propositions:

Third Provision: The same as First Provision except substitute third for first calendar year.

Fourth Provision: The same as First Provision except substitute fourth for first calendar year.

Fifth Provision: The same as First Provision except substitute fifth for first calendar year.

The following table indicates the probable results of all of these provisions as nearly as they can be estimated with the data available to me at the present time.

Groups of Lieutenants Affected	First Provision: (No Retirement prior to June 30, 1935)	Second Provision: (No Retirement prior to June 30, 1936)	Third Provision: (No Retirement prior to June 30, 1937)	Same as Second Provision, plus N.A. Class 1923.

* In his testimony before the House Naval Affairs Committee, Admiral William B. Leahy, Chief of Bureau of Navigation, estimated that 260 and 269 lieutenants per year would be selected to Lieutenant-commander. An average figure of 230 per year has been used.

† Number used is the sum of lieutenants selected and retired during the period under consideration.

No extended study of this table is required to appreciate the injustice being done to the Ex-reservists, ex-temporary officers and the N. A. Classes of 1920 and 1921 under the First Provision. But 47% of these officers would be selected, while subsequent classes would have percentages selected as follows: Class 1922—60.5%, Class 1923—60%, Class 1924—75%. If the second provision is adopted, the percentage of the Ex-reservist, ex-temporary officers and

N. A. Classes 1920, 1921, and 1922 selected rises 56%, percentages of subsequent classes remaining as previously stated.

As regards the lieutenants (junior grade) there is no question but that the Second Provision is far superior to the First, for under the second, 94% are selected as compared to 72.5% under the First. If the transition period be lengthened, subsequent larger classes reduce this figure to an average of 88%.

This table illustrates all too clearly the disastrous effect on promotion of the "wartime hump" between the classes of 1919 and 1921. The large disparity in the size of these groups when compared to the normal sized classes after them makes vitally necessary a limitation of large numbers of these officers if promotion is ever to flow smoothly again. Such drastic selection as is proposed will unquestionably provide such elimination, but at what a cost in loss to the Navy of the service of valuable officers.

In making this study, it was my original impression that all that would be required to make the bill a fair one would be a transition period of five years, but the table above indicates most clearly that such is not the case. Extension of the transition period from two to five years results in increase in percentage of lieutenants selected of only 11%. Over a period of five years, but 67% of the officers coming up would be selected. Unquestionably many fine officers would be summarily retired, for it is service opinion that at least 80% of the officers of this group of 2065 are of definite value to the Navy. It is agreed that, as stated in the hearing before the House Committee, junior grade lieutenants would not be greatly affected by the Bill, provided there be a transition period of at least two years.

But it is not enough to study only the percentages of selection under the various plans. To understand completely the effect of this Bill, one must examine into the Retired Pay which officers not selected will receive upon retirement, and it is in this study that the most grievous discrimination and unfairness becomes apparent. The following table gives the retired pay which the officers of the various classes and groups may expect to receive if retired under the provision of the present Bill.

RETIRED PAY TABLE

Groups Affected	First Provision: (No Retirement prior to June 30, 1935.)		Second Provision: (No Retirement prior to June 30, 1936.)

Not only is it apparent that ex-temporary and ex-reservist officers receive much more retired pay upon completion of their active service with the Navy at the same time and in the same phase of their Naval career as the officers of the Naval Academy classes, but also this table shows that retired Chief Petty Officers receive as much and in some cases more, pay than officers retired after the same number of years active service in the Navy. For to the "Years service for pay purposes" given in the table must be added four years at the Naval Academy for which officers of the Naval Academy classes under consideration receive no credit in computing their base or retired pay. Thus it is seen that an officer of the N. A. Classes of 1920 or 1921 retiring after 20 years service, counting the years at the Academy, would actually receive $47 per year less than a chief petty officer retired after 20 years service. Furthermore, all officers of N. A. Classes after 1921 retiring with 18 years of actual service would receive but $1008 which is $59 less than the average of the retired pay received by chief petty officers after 16 and 20 years active service. Both of these proposals are bitterly unfair to officers who not only have given as loyal and efficient service to the Navy as have the Chief Petty Officers but have also been in Positions of infinitely greater responsibility. It is not believed that the Congress would intentionally perpetrate such an injustice upon the younger officers of the Navy.

A study of the Navy Register for 1933 reveals that there are, in the group of ex-temporary officers affected by this Bill, 45 lieutenants who will by June 30, 1936 have completed 30 years service and can by that date, retire with a yearly income of $3375. Further study reveals that there are 40 lieutenant-commanders who will, by June 30, 1936, have completed 30 years service and can by that date, retire with a yearly income of $4038. Is it an injustice to suggest that these officers can be retired on such yearly incomes better than can lieutenants from the Class of 1922 who would receive but $1008 per annum?

A carping criticism without constructive suggestions is not intended. I repeat my belief that the principle of extension of selection to lieutenant and lieutenant-commander is sound. But I do believe that this should be coupled with a searching culling over of all officers below the rank of Commander, in short, the authorization by legislation of the convening of a "plucking board" to examine all officers now in the rank of lieutenant-commander so that the "deadwood" and the inefficient (as Mr. Vinson of Georgia called them) in that rank who have not been subjected to selection may be separated from the Service. This is an urgent necessity in justice and fairness to the younger officers in the ranks of lieutenant and lieutenant (junior grade) who are to be subjected to such rigorous selection.

I further urge consideration by the Congress of the advisability of forcing retirement of officers in the ranks of lieutenant and lieutenant-commander, who will have completed 30 years ser-cers coming up?

Furthermore, even if officers with 30 years service completed cannot be made to retire and if the Congress will not authorize a "Plucking Board", still I strongly favor the present Bill, but I would urge the consideration of two major changes:

First: A proviso "That no officer of said rank shall become so ineligible prior to June 30 of the fifth calendar year following the date of this Act", and this I recommend even though it reduces my chance of making lieutenant commander from over 90% to 67%.

Second: A proviso "That no lieutenant shall be retired as a result of this Act with a retired pay of less than $1500 per year and no lieutenant (junior grade) shall be retired with a retired pay of less than $900 per year".

Surely the lieutenants deserve better of the government they have served than the Chief Petty Officers who have served under them. Surely the lieutenants (junior grade) deserve better of the government than the Chief Petty Officers retired on 16 years service!

Action of some sort is urgently necessary. These suggestions in connection with the pending Navy Line Personnel Bill are respectfully presented to the Congress and their consideration and adoption earnestly recommended.

vice by the date upon which the proposed Personnel Bill becomes effective with respect to retirement of other officers not selected. Again to quote Mr. Vinson, who knows a great deal about the Navy: "In the evolution of effective and efficient officers, it is necessary that they obtain command positions while they are yet young. This is what the Navy is striving to do. The Navy's system is entirely different from that of the Army where promotion is all clogged up, with the result that the Army has 64-year-old lieutenants."

On the active list of the Navy among those officers I have mentioned above who will have completed 30 years service by June 30, 1936, there are lieutenants who will be between 51 and 59 and lieutenant-commanders who will be between 50 and 60 years old on that date. Why cannot they pass on to the retired list and make way for the younger offi-

SATURDAY, MAY 19, 1934

"National Defense is one of the cardinal duties of a statesman."—JOHN ADAMS.

THE DEBATE IN THE HOUSE THIS WEEK on the Navy and Marine Corps promotion bills is important as showing the determination of Congress to increase the efficiency not only of these branches of National Defense but of the Army as well. The enactment of the Vinson Naval treaty bill, the approval of the allotments of PWA money to both the land and sea Services, and the satisfactory regular supply bills adopted, in themselves, were proof that Congress was mindful of the dangers inherent in the present world situation, and was moving to perfect our insurance against war. Having acted in the matter of materiel, the House gave attention to the temper and condition of the personnel, and as a result of the interest and activity shown by the Naval Committee, it has acted to reform the promotion systems of the sea arm. It seems logical to expect the Senate to follow the example of the House and before the session closes a more satisfactory promotion law, perhaps with some of the objectionable features of the House bill removed, will be on the statute books. The Army might well feel that it is neglected, that its need for promotion reform is serious, and that the Military Committee upon which it must depend for its orderly development has been recreant in this respect to the duty imposed upon it by the country. Certainly, this is the deliberate judgment of the Kiwanis Club, of Columbus, Ga., and other civilian organizations. There will be no complaint at the care the Naval Committee has required for the personnel operating and incident to the Fleet; rather everyone connected with the Regular Establishments and the public at large will applaud the steps taken to add to efficiency. Like popular approbation should be sought by the Military Committee. It cannot censure the War Department for inactivity in this matter. The annual reports of the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff repeatedly have called attention to the unsatisfactory and unwholesome situation existing in the commissioned personnel of the land forces. General MacArthur has prepared bills for reform; the Director of the Budget has refused to transmit them to Congress because of his claim that if enacted they would add to the expense of the Government. However, such refusal does not minimize the responsibility of the House Military Committee, which is primarily charged with the development and maintenance of the Army's efficiency. During the debate, Representative Wadsworth expressed the hope that something would be done for the Army as had been done for the Marine Corps. Representative McFarlane urged action. Apparently this was the view of the House. Under the circumstances, we appeal to Representative McSwain promptly to report a bill which will aid the morale of the land establishment to the same extent at least as those the House properly has passed for the benefit of the Navy and Marine Corps.

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE DISPATCH OF AMBASSADOR Davis to Geneva to attend the League of Nations limitation of arms conference, the President advised Congress that of the new PWA funds to be granted forty millions would be allotted to begin construction in order to bring the Fleet up to Treaty strength as provided in the Vinson Act. We are in entire agreement with the view expressed by Secretary of State Hull that it would be inadvisable for the United States to absent itself from the Conference, dubious as are the chances of any results flowing from it. The government properly would be blamed for refusal of representation, and it would have no sharper critics than among the personnel of the Regular Establishments, who have no more desire for a race of armaments than have the extreme pacifists. But the President and Mr. Hull, like the soldier and sailor, are practical idealists. They would prefer reduction in armaments, if such reduction could be fairly accomplished and observed, but that not being possible and with the world disturbed by threats of war, they are determined to do everything they properly can to make the United States so strong that it will not be drawn into conflict. To that end they are providing construction and abandoning the blue-print theory of defense. In beginning execution of the Vinson program, the President has notified the Powers that the United States intends to abide by the London Treaty, but reports from London, Paris, Rome and Tokyo disclose that those governments are awaiting the expiration of the Treaty in order that they may build even beyond the limits it imposes. Officials of the British, French, Italian and Japanese governments all have announced additions to their forces, land, sea and air, or proclaimed their intention to make them. For example, the Financial Secretary of the British War Office has stated that large sums will be spent next year in increasing armaments. So far as the United States is concerned, it is the consensus of careful opinion that enactment of the Thompson bill increasing the Army by 2,000 officers and 50,000 men and building the Navy up to the limits allowed by the London Treaty, would provide the force which would protect our interests.

UNABLE TO DESTROY NATIONAL DEFENSE BY DIRECT attack, American pacifists and foreign governments have revived the old issue of traffic in arms to cripple it. The former see in the impending Nye Senatorial inquiry revelation of operations by munitions manufacturers designed to promote and continue war in order that they may have markets for their feral products, the latter the development of public opinion in our country which will limit the output of the industry and thereby weaken our ability for defense. Sales of American material, it is charged, have been made to all parties to a conflict. The League of Nations declares the Chaco conflict would end almost immediately if the belligerents were deprived of munitions.

A former British Prime Minister inferentially alleges that our failure to join in an international ban on arms exports is responsible for the continuance of that conflict. President Roosevelt apparently is impressed by these various charges, for he has announced his intention to urge action which will enable an embargo on arms shipments. We hope in prescribing the policy to receive legislative sanction the President will recall the frantic efforts of England, Russia and France to obtain guns, rifles and other arms during the World War and not deprive his country of the means to furnish such material for its own forces in case of need.

Didn't Want to Miss It

Mike Williams, O'Neil Sevier's betting commissioner, told us, on the way home from the track the other evening, about the Rabbi whose son was a bit of a backslider. Usually on any important holiday or fast day the father would see to it that the son observed it properly. However the son moved to another state and when the holidays came around the father would be very much worried for fear that the son might overlook them. It was this fear that prompted him to wire his son—"Don't forget Yom Kippur starts tomorrow."

To which the son replied—"No bookies here, put ten on it for me."

We told Mike we'd use the joke in this column and give him credit for it.

"Credit?" he snorted, "don't I get a prize?"

"All right," says we, "we'll give you a tip on a horse."

"A tip on a horse?" Say, try to forget the joke, please!" was Mike's unappreciative rejoinder.

Warming Up

The colored fellow, much the worse for wear, appeared before the judge.

"Rastus," said the judge, "you are accused of disturbing the entire neighborhood last night. What have you to offer as an explanation for such conduct?"

"Well, sah, judge, it was dis here way," began Rastus. "Night 'fore last Ah comes over to see my gal Lucy and gib her a tip on a 'good thing' goin' yesterday and she done gib me two dollahs to bet at de track. Well, sah, de hoss done had bad luck and lost and when Ah go ovah to see Lucy las' night she calls me a no-count tout and Ah gits mad and slap her down flat. Up she hops and smash a plate on mah haid and drop me flat. Den Ah riz up an' welt her one wit' a chalah; an' den she heave a hot tea kettle at me."

"I see," said the judge, "then what happened?"

"An' den," said Rastus, "we gits mad and starts to fight."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Army Retirements—With the Board of General officers having completed its work and notices going out to approximately 100 officers of the Army informing them that they have been placed provisionally in class "B", the War Department this week began sharply increasing the number of officers to be ordered before retiring boards for examination as to their physical fitness to remain on the active list.

In the Special Orders for the week ended May 17 a total of 57 officers were ordered to report before Army Retiring Boards for examination. The largest day's allotment was on Tuesday, May 15, when 19 officers were so ordered. Of the total of 57, seven were colonels, eleven lieutenant colonels, nineteen majors, nineteen captains, and one first lieutenant. During the week there were also six officers ordered home to await retirement. Of these six, one was a colonel, three captains, one first lieutenant, and one second lieutenant.

Also, in order to provide machinery for the examination of officers ordered before retiring boards, this week's Special Orders contained the appointment of five boards of officers for this purpose. The boards so appointed are San Francisco; Ft. Hayes, Columbus, Ohio; Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo.; Governors Island, N. Y.; and Washington, D. C.

No details are known as to the exact number of officers placed provisionally in Class B, nor as to their spread through the ranks, although it is rumored that at least a few colonels were so notified.

In the office of the Surgeon General of the Army, study still continues of the medical records of officers with a view to reporting to the war Department the names of all who might be found physically unfit for further active duty.

As stated before, no effort is being made to "bear down" unduly in order to carry out the provisions of the 1935 appropriation act which, while maintaining the 12,000 average, specifies that after Sept. 30 there shall not be on the active list more than 11,750 whose original commissions are dated prior to June 1, 1934. In order to live up to this provision there is merely a speeding up of the normal processes. The extra activity of the "B" board resulted not from the new provision of law, but from the new executive order and ensuing army regulations which strengthened the powers of the Board of General officers and makes their final classification final in fact and not subject to review except by specific order of the President of the United States.

West Pointers to Cruise—Six members of the United States Military Academy's June graduating class will accompany the United States Naval Academy midshipmen when they embark on their annual Summer training cruise next month.

The policy of bringing about this association is a comparatively new one. One West Point cadet went on the cruise in 1931, five in 1932 and in 1933 six.

The Cadets selected for this year's cruise are Thomas L. Crystal, of Ft. Hayes, Ohio; Gerald J. Higgins, of Buhl, Idaho; John G. Benner, of Anna, Ill.; William S. Stone, St. Louis; Stacy W. Goch, of Kaplan, La., and George B. Dany, of San Diego, Calif.

Reserve Training Policies, 1934—The War Department has prepared a new compilation of approved Reserve Training Policies, 1934. Its use will obviate the present necessity for reference to a large number of scattered authorities.

Inasmuch as annual revisions are contemplated, recommendations for changes or modifications should be submitted to the War Department prior to Oct. 1 of each year.

Changes or amplifications of present policies will be found in paragraphs 10, 15 and 20, the new texts of which are as follows:

"10. Unit Commanders and Instructors.—A primary objective of training is the organization and functioning of regiments, smaller units, and installations so as to produce homogeneous teams, commanded, led, and administered by their respective unit commanders and staffs. The selection of personnel to attend training should be based upon the recommendations of Reserve unit commanders and instructors.

"Priority in selection of the authorized ten per cent of field officers will be given to the senior officer in each organization scheduled to be trained as a unit, who has been pursuing satisfactorily the inactive duty training prescribed. Next priority among field officers will be given to those whose services as instructors are particularly desired. Field officers ordered to active duty will be employed to the fullest extent in the supervision and conduct of training."

"15. Training of Units With the CMTC.—Within the limits imposed by fiscal and other practical considerations, training in each CMT Camp will be conducted by a unit or units of the Organized Reserves under Plan 1, Plan 2 or Plan 3 described below. For each camp the Corps Area Commander will select that plan which produces the maximum amount of training for Reserve units, and which is feasible in the particular circumstances obtaining.

"Plan 1. Use one unit of the Organized Reserves per camp for a period of ten days after three or four days' intensive training, with the training of the CMTC conducted by Regular Army and Individual Reserve officers for the remaining twenty days.

"Plan 2. Use two units of the Organized Reserves per camp for periods of ten days each after three or four days' intensive training, with the training of the CMTC conducted by Regular Army and Individual Reserve officers for the remaining ten days.

"Plan 3. Use three units of the Organized Reserves per camp for periods of ten days each after three or four days' intensive training.

"Selected Reserve officers will be placed on 30-day active duty training to assist in providing continuity of CMTC training and administration. The utilization of Regular Army officers for supervision, administration and instruction will be held to the minimum necessary for efficient operation. (See Par. 18).

"Notice of designation for CMTC duty will be given units of the Organized Reserves and individual officers as early as possible in the training year so that their inactive duty training may be pointed toward CMTC duty."

"20. Attendance at Service Schools.—Much of the training of the Organized Reserves must depend upon the Reserve officers who are themselves capable of commanding and instructing. To secure these officers the current program has for its objective an output from the General and Special Service Schools that will provide graduates of the appropriate schools for units of the Organized Reserves and for Inactive Regular Army units as follows:

"One to each brigade headquarters, battalion or squadron of Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, and Chemical Warfare Service; one to each battalion or squadron of Engineers and Air Corps; one to each battalion, divisional signal company, radio intelligence company, and divisional signal troop of the Signal Corps; one to each battalion, evacuation, station and general hospital of the Medical Corps; and eleven, including one division signal officer, to each division headquarters. An excess of 25 per cent of the number of graduates resulting from the above distribution will be provided for department, branch and corps area staff and installations.

"Selection of Reserve officers, irrespective of grade, to attend courses for

Reserve officers at Special Service Schools will be limited to those who have taken and completed within the five years immediately preceding their detail to attend courses beginning after July 1, 1934, Army Extension Course subcourses as described below and who possess other qualifications as indicated:

School	Course	Subcourses requisite for promotion to grade of—
Infantry School	Company officers' course Tank course Field officers' course	Captain, Inf-Res. Captain, Inf-Res. Major, Inf-Res.
Engineer School	Special course	Captain, Engr-Res.
Cavalry School	Troop officers' course Field officers' course	Captain, Cav-Res. Major, Cav-Res.
Field Artillery School	Battery officers' course Field officers' course	Captain, FA-Res. Major, FA-Res.
Coast Artillery School	Battery officers' course Field officers' course	Captain, CA-Res. (a) Major, CA-Res.
Signal School	Special course	Captain, Sig-Res. (b) (c)
Air Corps Tactical School	Special course	Major, Air-Res. (See Par. 2, b, AR 350-530).
Chemical Warfare School	Unit gas officers' course Line and staff officers' course	Captain, CW-Res. Major, CW-Res.
Ordnance Field Service School	Officers' courses	Captain, Ord-Res.
Finance School	Course	Captain, Fin-Res.
Quartermaster Corps School	Special course	Captain, QM-Res. (c)
Medical Field Service School	Field officers' course Advanced course	Major, appropriate section in Medical Dept. Res. (d)
School of Aviation Medicine	Course	(e)

Additional qualifications:

(a) A thorough knowledge of plane trigonometry.
(b) A thorough knowledge of elementary electricity and elementary principles of radio.

(c) Completion of the 40-series, especially 40-7 is desirable where practicable.

(d) Completion of special staff and logistics course.

(e) Completion of the extension course of the School of Aviation Medicine.

"The initial program for distribution of Reserve officers by branch to attend courses at service schools will be set up annually and transmitted by the War Department to Corps Area Commanders. Corps Area Commanders, while adhering as closely as possible to these annual programs, are authorized to make such modifications in them as are dictated by local conditions; notifying the War Department of all contemplated changes."

Red Cross Aid by Radio—Arrangements have been made with the American National Red Cross so that when Red Cross reports regarding emergencies in the homes of men are desired, the commanding officer of any naval ship at sea may radio the request for report to the commandant of the naval district nearest the headquarters of which the problem lies, for transmission by naval radio to the Field Director of the American Red Cross nearest whose station the problem lies.

Until the success of the plan has been demonstrated, it will not be applied except where the home problem lies within continental United States and therefore only the naval districts in the continental limits will be involved.

The Field Directors of the American Red Cross to be used under this plan are those adjacent to whose stations there is a naval radio station.

Field Artillery Trainers—Development work on the caliber .22 non-fouling blank for use with the field Artillery Trainer, has been completed, and an order has been placed with the Remington Arms Company for 9,000 rounds for use in an extended test.

In the development work it was found necessary to use a long rifle case made of brass instead of copper, in order to provide sufficient capacity and strength for the charge of smokeless powder required to give the same uniformity and ballistic qualities as the .22 black powder blank.

A contract is being placed with the Quantiproductions Machine Corporation of Brooklyn, N. Y. for 212 trainers for the National Guard. Delivery is promised before June 30, 1934. Proposals have been issued for an additional lot of 48 trainers.

Administration of Oaths by Army Officers—Even though an officer of the Army may be authorized by the 114th Article of War to administer oaths, he may not act in that capacity for officers of the National Guard of the United States taking the oath of office.

The question was recently put up to the Judge Advocate General of the Army who replied: "The question is answered in the negative. Under the form of oath prescribed by the statute (Sec. 73, National Defense Act, as amended by the Act of June 15, 1933) an officer of the National Guard of the United States must swear allegiance and obedience to both State and Federal governments. The one hundred fourteenth article of war does not authorize persons therein designated to administer the oath of office to a State official."

Navy to Have "Freedom of Air"—Army aviators have been instructed to give the Navy "freedom of the air" during the aerial demonstration to be staged during the review of the fleet by President Roosevelt off Ambrose Channel Lightship, May 31, at 11 A. M.

Naval aircraft attached to the fleet will participate in air operations consisting of all phases of Naval air tactics. Nine battleships in single column, constituting the next to the last unit in the fleet formation, will steam past the reviewing ship. As the last battleship passes the aerial demonstration will begin.

Enlisted Men's Travel—The Comptroller General rated this week that where an enlisted man absent without leave from his proper station is furnished transportation requests for transportation to return thereto, the enlisted man is traveling for his own purposes and under the opinion of the Supreme Court in United States v. Union Pacific Company, 249 U. S. 354, the carrier is entitled to payment for the transportation without land-grant deduction.

"Where, however," the Comptroller stated, "an enlisted man absent without leave from his proper station reports at an Army post other than his station or is apprehended and delivered to such post, and is there tried for his offense, the military authorities have resumed control and direction of the enlisted man and his travel thereafter in obedience to orders directing him to proceed to his former station is not for his own purposes but for military purposes and the Government is entitled to land-grant deduction for transportation furnished for such ordered travel. The fact that the man may be required to reimburse the Government for the cost of transportation his misconduct has caused it is not a basis for relieving the railroad company from furnishing transportation at the reduced rate applicable for the travel of troops of the United States."

AND STILL OTHERS

Aside from the stores and the individuals who are members of a co-operative Association there is another group of great importance. They are the "possible members," those individuals who, although fulfilling the requirements for membership have not as yet associated themselves with the thousands of other Service people in this Association.

Their reasons may be good—or not, but it rests with each present member to spread the word of information and encouragement. Another member spells strength.

Weddings and Engagements

Lt. A. D. Blackledge, USN, and Miss Dorothy Forrant were married in Tokyo, Japan, April 24, 1934. Lieutenant and Mrs. Blackledge are due to return from the Asiatic Station this summer and will go to Washington, D. C., where Lieutenant Blackledge has been assigned to duty.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Marguerite Miles, daughter of Samuel Miles of San Diego, Calif., and Lt. Clifford Thurston Logan, DC, USN.

Lt. Richard Hungerford Wise, AC, USA and Miss Sykes Richardson, of Macon, Miss., were married Tuesday, May 15, at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Col. and Mrs. Hugh D. Wise, at Princeton, N. J.

The wedding was informal and no announcements were sent out.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Wise left immediately by automobile for Newark from where they will fly to Los Angeles en route to Luke Field, Honolulu, where Lieutenant Wise is stationed.

The marriage of Miss Julia Yancey Hill Obeir, daughter of Maj. Gen. William Gray Obeir and the late Mrs. Legare Hill Obeir to Lt. Walter Scott Mayer, Jr., USN, took place Friday evening, May 4, at Washington, D. C. The ceremony was performed by Capt. Sidney K. Evans, chaplain, USN, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride's father was many years in the national Guard of Georgia, in which he served as adjutant general, inspector and quartermaster general.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Walter S. Mayer of Staten Island, N. Y., and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1925. He has been assigned to the Asiatic Fleet and will probably be stationed in Shanghai. Lieutenant and Mrs. Mayer sailed on May 12 from Seattle on the S. S. President Jefferson.

The marriage of Miss Edith Vincent Lloyd, daughter of Maj. William H. Lloyd, MC, USA, and Mrs. Lloyd, to Lt. George William Lermond, USA, of Ft. Jay, Governors Island, N. Y., son of Mrs. George P. Lermond of Nahant, Mass., took place Thursday, May 10. The ceremony was performed in the Catholic chapel on Governors Island, Rev. M. Dunne officiating.

The bride was escorted by her father. She wore a gown of ivory mousseline de sole, the lace train bound with mousseline de sole, and her duchesse lace veil was becomingly arranged. She carried white lilacs and lilies of the valley.

Miss Sally Lloyd was maid of honor for her sister. James A. K. Herbert, USA, was best man.

A wedding breakfast and informal reception followed in the Officers' Club at Governors Island, after which Lieutenant and Mrs. Lermond left for a wedding trip. After their return they will live at Governors Island.

Major and Mrs. Lloyd formerly were stationed at Ft. Washington, Md., and now are on leave preparatory to going to the former's new post in Panama.

FT. BENNING, GA.

May 18, 1934

Results of the different classes in the Ft. Benning Flower show, which was held at the Polo-Hunt Club on Thursday afternoon, show that Mrs. Raymond W. Pearson won the greatest number of events with entries and arrangements grown and developed at the Pearson quarters. This year's show, which is Ft. Benning's second, surpassed the 1933 exhibition both in the number and quality of the entries, and showed that the personnel of the post is taking an increased interest in the care of the lawns and grounds surrounding their quarters.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Kenneth Kendall, niece of Capt. and Mrs. Herbert L. Harries, to Lt. Robert B. Neely, was made recently at Ft. Benning. Miss Kendall is well known at the post and in Columbus as one of the most charming debs of the season, and also as an accomplished horse-woman.

A number of officers and ladies of the garrison who will depart this summer for new stations were honored by a dinner party at the Big Eddy Club of Columbus last week. The guest list included a number of other officers of the post as well, among them being Brig. Gen. and Mrs. G. H. Eates, post commandant, Col. and Mrs. Fred L. Munson, Col. and Mrs. George F. Baltzwell, Col. and Mrs. Ephraim G. Peyton, Col. and Mrs. William B. Wallace, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Burton A. Seeley, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Reginald H. Kelley, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John L. Jenkins, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas B. Catron, and Capt. and Mrs. Edward C. Betts.

Maj. and Mrs. Lucius K. Patterson entertained in honor of Mrs. Charles L. Mitchell on Thursday evening at a small dinner party. Mrs. Mitchell is visiting Maj. and Mrs. Elbert J. Lyman.

Lt. and Mrs. James R. Pierce, who left last Friday for their new station at the Military Academy, were entertained Sunday at a dinner and theatre party given by Lt. Col. and Mrs. Andrew D. Chaffin. The guests were Maj. and Mrs. Herbert A. Wadsworth, Capt. and Mrs. Arnold J. Funk, Capt. and Mrs. Horace O. Cushman, Lt. and Mrs. Archibald W. Stuart and Mrs. H. A. Weeks.

Lt. and Mrs. Pierce, together with Lt. and Mrs. William W. O'Connor, and Miss Harriette Atkins, were the hosts at another dance last Saturday evening at the Polo-Hunt Club. It was a very novel affair, in "shipwreck style," with the porch decorated as the deck of a wrecked steamer, and the ballroom as a tropical isle. Several informal affairs were held preceeding the dance, among those entertaining at dinner being Capt. and Mrs. Guy G. McKinley, Lt. and Mrs. O'Connor, Lt. and Mrs. Lynn E. Brady, and Miss Atkins.

NEWPORT, R. I.

May 14, 1934

Rear Adm. Luke McNamee, pres. of the Naval War College, is to retire from the Navy at his own request. Admiral McNamee will accept the presidency of the Mackay Radio and Telegraph Co., filling the position formally held by Mr. Clarence Mackay, who will become Chairman of the Board. Here in Newport, the loss of this distinguished officer, who has had a brilliant career in the Navy since 1888, will be keenly felt, but his many friends wish him continued success and happiness in this new field.

Admiral and Mrs. McNamee, and their niece, Miss Patricia Alms, will leave for New York June 15, where they have taken a house at East 91st St.

Rear Adm. William D. Leahy, USN, chief of the bureau of navigation, will be the principal speaker at the Naval War College graduation on May 25. Secretary of the Navy Swanson was unable to be present because of his health, and the Assistant Secretary of the Navy who came for the exercises last year, cannot be here this year because of other engagements.

Adm. Sir Lewis Bayly, Royal Navy, will be the guest of Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. John D. H. Kane, when he arrives from England later in the month to unveil a bronze tablet in memorium to the late Vice Adm. Joel R. Poinsett Pringle at Annapolis. Mrs. Kane was formally Miss Cordella Pringle.

Lt. Col. Edward E. McCammon, commanding officer at Ft. Adams, has received orders to become head of the organized reserve at Syracuse, N. Y., and expects to leave before June 3 to take over his new command.

At least three hundred guests attended the dance on Saturday evening at the Training Station, given by the commanding officers, and officers of Naval Activities in Newport. Rear Adm. and Mrs. Luke McNamee headed the receiving line, with Capt. and Mrs. Herbert C. Cocke, Capt. and Mrs. Harvey Delano, and Capt. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Dorsey.

Among those giving dinners before the dance were: Comdr. and Mrs. H. R. Hein, Maj. and Mrs. John B. Coulter, and Mrs. Frederic W. Rhinlander for Miss Virginia Raeburn.

Mrs. Strong, wife of Maj. Allen G. Strong, USA, of the Naval War College, had a dramatic recital of her pupils last week, in the Trinity guild house. Two plays were given, "Buried Treasure" and "The Maker of Dreams," the participants being the daughters of Army and Navy officers. Mrs. W. C. Wickham was art director, Mrs. James L. Kauffman was in charge of costumes, and Mrs. Thomas F. Dwyer of settings.

It has been announced from Washington that the main building of the Naval War College will be known as Luce Hall, named after the founder, the late Adm. Stephen B. Luce and that the new wing will be known as Pringle Hall, after the late Vice Adm. J. R. Poinsett Pringle, who was President of the College when the plans of the new building were completed and approved.

FT. FRANCIS E. WARREN, WYO.

May 10, 1934

Ft. Francis E. Warren is making preparations for one of the largest and best outdoor polo tournaments ever held at that post. Preliminary arrangements are being carried out under the direction of Lt. John G. Van Houten, aide to Brig. Gen. Casper H. Conrad, Jr. This tournament brings together teams from distant states and should furnish ample competition as well as some thrilling polo for the spectators.

Competing for honors in the local tournament will be teams from Ft. Warren composed of the Brigade and the 76th Field Artillery, one from the National Guard of Wyoming and two from the city of Cheyenne. Some prominent visiting teams will be from Denver, Colorado Springs and Fort Logan, Colorado, Fort Mead, S. D., and one team from California.

Games will be played on the George Ball field at Ft. Warren. A public address system has been secured by post authorities, and will be installed for the games this summer. A competent announcer will broadcast the games, play by play with brief explanations as to positions and functions of the players. Polo has made much progress at Ft. Warren during the recent months and this feature is expected to increase the popularity by far over past times.

Army Art Society

The Army Arts and Crafts Society of the Presidio of San Francisco held its first Exhibition May first to sixth, inclusive in the Recreation Hall, Letterman General Hospital. It is estimated one thousand people visited the Exhibit; the opening night being a real social event.

Mrs. Hugh C. Smith, wife of Colonel Smith JAGD, organized the Society and was elected its first president. She has expressed the hope that similar societies will be formed at other Army centers. Lt. Col. Joseph O. Mauborgne is first vice-president; Mrs. Henry S. Burgin, wife of Lt. Colonel Burgin, is second vice-president; and Mrs. Harold G. Sydenham, wife of Lieutenant Sydenham, is Secretary and Treasurer.

The invitation to exhibit and join the Society was extended to all Regular Army personnel, regardless of rank, and members of their families over fourteen years of age.

The following chairmen had charge of the several sections of the exhibit: Oil Paintings, Mrs. M. A. W. Shockey; Portraits and Etchings, Maj. G. H. Boyer; Water Colors, Mrs. H. T. Burgin; Modeling, Mrs. Charles F. Humphrey, Jr.; Pastels, Major Roy E. Fox; Drawings, Mrs. D. P. Frissell; Handicraft, Miss Helen C. Paulson; Needlework, Miss Jessie M. Braden; Photography, Captain R. B. Woolverton.

Forty-seven persons responded to the invitation to exhibit and enrolled as active members of the Society; nearly as many more became associate members. The interest and enthusiasm shown by all was remarkable. It is contemplated to hold another exhibit next December.

Weddings and Engagements

the marriage of their daughter, Marian, to 2nd Lt. Dorsey H. Davenport, 145th Inf., Ohio National Guard, Akron, Sunday, April 29, 1934, on the wedding anniversary of Major and Mrs. Patten.

Dr. William Henry Huber of the First Presbyterian Church of Akron officiated at the home of the bride's parents, 1158 Jefferson Ave., Akron, in the presence of the immediate family.

The bride wore aquamarine crepe with beige accessories and a corsage of yellow opella roses and lilies of the valley. A wedding dinner at the Akron City Club followed the ceremony.

The announcement of the marriage was made at home by Major and Mrs. Patten at a birthday party for their daughter on Saturday evening, May 5. A dancing party at Cuyahoga Falls followed with fourteen guests present. The honor guests were the bride's cousin, Miss Maxine Mercer, and the bride's closest friend, Mrs. William K. Born, Jr., both of Toledo, Ohio, who were her week-end guests. The other guests were officers of the Regular Army, the Ohio National Guard, and the Organized Reserves, their wives and lady friends.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Davenport are at home temporarily with the bride's parents until Major and Mrs. Patten leave Akron the latter part of May for Ft. Snelling, Minn., where Major Patten will be on duty with the Third Infantry.

In honor of Major and Mrs. Patten, Lieutenant and Mrs. F. G. Coin, Infantry, Reserve, Akron, entertained with a bridge party at the University Club on Tuesday evening, May 8.

Capt. and Mrs. John F. Hines, USN-Ret., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Breckinridge Hines, to Mr. Edward B. Hodge, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Hodge of Philadelphia. The wedding took place May 5 in the Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

A pretty garden wedding took place Wednesday, May 9, when Miss Rion Fortescue, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Granville R. Fortescue, was married to Mr. G. Daulton Viskniskki, son of Col. and Mrs. Guy Thomas Viskniskki, of Montclair, N. J.

The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock in the garden of Twin Oaks, the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Charles J. Bell.

Miss Natalie Whitehall, of Sayville, Long Island, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Helene Fortescue, sister of the bride; Miss Jane McKee, Miss Isabelle Perry, Miss Eliza Mitchell and Miss Janet Viskniskki, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. William Blum was the best man, and the ushers were Mr. Charles Montgomery, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Samuel Mayhew, of Iowa; Mr. Walter Selbert and Mrs. William McFeeley, of New York, and Mr. Edward Sieburn, of Louisiana.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Viskniskki and his bride left for a trip to Bermuda.

Macon Leaves For Coast

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson announced this week that the USS Macon, Comdr. A. H. Dresel, USN, commanding, left Miami for Sunnyvale at 7:07 a.m. May 16. Commander Dresel will pick whatever route he deems advisable and will depend somewhat upon weather conditions. The probable route of the Macon will be: over the Gulf of Mexico to Texas, passing through El Paso, Van Horn, Texas, and Tucson, Arizona to San Diego, following the sea from San Diego to Sunnyvale.

The Secretary also announced that the Marine squadron of fighting planes which have been operating with the Fleet Marine Force in connection with the maneuvers and war problems in the Caribbean under command of Lt. Col. Ross E. Rowell, USMC, and consisting of 19 planes, arrived at Miami May 15, from Puerto Rico and Guantanamo, Cuba, on their way to Quantico.

OBITUARIES

Maj. Frederick W. McLaren Patterson, died May 15, 1934 at the age of 55 years in a Washington, D. C. hospital, following a long illness, from an incurable malady, borne with the greatest fortitude, calmness and though suffering greatly, without complaint. Ever thoughtful of relatives and friends, to avoid causing grief he was always cheerful before them.

A valiant soldier and a courageous newspaper editor, Major Patterson's death is a distinct loss to those who had the good fortune to have known him. He was a natural leader of men, a born soldier, and possessed of a magnetic personality, strength of character and a cheerfulness of disposition that knew no bounds.

A son of Mrs. Patterson and the late William J. Ballentyne Patterson, Major Patterson at once volunteered for service upon the entrance of the United States in the World War and was commissioned Captain, Infantry Section, Officers' Reserve Corps, May 11, 1917. Proceeding to France with the 315th Infantry, 79th Division, he was appointed Major, Infantry, U. S. A., September 3, 1918. While in command of his Battalion he was severely wounded at Nantillois, September 28 and for extraordinary heroism in action was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Major Patterson was also awarded the Decoration of the Purple Heart.

His citation for the Distinguished Service Cross, published in Special Orders, No. 15, 1921, War Department, reads as follows:

"Frederick W. McL. Patterson, major, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. For extraordinary heroism in action near Nantillois, France, September 28-29, 1918. After being severely wounded in the left leg, he continued throughout the night to exercise command of his battalion at a critical time. He refused medical aid until the morning of the 29th and was evacuated by order of the regimental commander."

He was one of five brothers holding commissions in the United States Army during the World War, one of whom (Second Lieutenant Lyman Patterson a pilot, Air Service, 1918-20) was killed in an airplane crash February 22, 1930.

Following a long period in hospital in France and the United States, Major Patterson for several years was financial editor of the Washington Post and subsequently owned the Manassas (Virginia) Journal which he edited with distinction until ill health necessitated his retirement. Since then he has resided at his old Colonial estate "Oak Grove," White Plains, Charles County, Maryland.

Major Patterson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sophie (Clark) Patterson, his mother and four brothers: Col. Wm. Lay Patterson, USA-Ret., Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, The Surgeon General of the Army, Jeffrey B. Patterson and Alexander Balfour Patterson.

Funeral services, held at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Washington, on May 17, were conducted by the Rector, the Rev. A. A. McCallum, interment being in Arlington (Virginia) National Cemetery. A delegation of members of the Masonic Lodge of which Major Patterson was a member acted as pallbearers, while representatives were present from the National Press Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the District of Columbia Bankers Association, the American Legion and other societies.

Mrs. Hugo Rudolph, wife of Col. Hugo Rudolph, Commanding Officer 147th Infantry, USNG, died suddenly of heart failure following a long illness, at her home in Owensville, Ohio, Sunday, May 13th.

Funeral services were conducted at the family home on South Broadway, Owensville, Ohio, Wednesday, May 16th, by Maj. Frederick N. McMillin, Chaplain. Burial was in the family plot of Owensville Cemetery.

Brig. Gen. Julius A. Penn, USA-Ret., died at Batavia, Ohio, May 13, 1934.

General Penn was born in Mattoon,

Ohio, Feb. 19, 1865, and entered the Military Academy July 1, 1882. Serving through the various grades to colonel March 2, 1917, to brigadier general, National Army, on Aug. 5, 1917, and reverted to his regular rank of colonel March 1, 1919. He retired for disability in line of duty Dec. 5, 1924; and was promoted brigadier general, retired, June 21, 1930.

During the World War General Penn was overseas from Aug., 1918 to Dec., 1918, and served at Chaumont, France, as Chief of Personnel Bureau, from Aug., 1918 to Oct., 1918; assigned to command of 76th Inf. Brig., 38th Div., 5th Corps, as observer, from Oct., 1918 to Nov., 1918; commanded 38th Div., Cadre from Dec., 1918 to March, 1919, when he returned to U. S.

General Penn was a graduate of the Army War College and the Infantry-Cavalry School. He received the Silver Star Citation for gallantry in action in the Philippines in 1899.

Mrs. Lenora M. Chapman, wife of Capt. Gerald L. Chapman, CAC, USA, died Saturday, May 12 at her home on Davis Avenue, Plaistow, N. H., following a short illness of pneumonia. Funeral services were held Tuesday, May 15, in the Baptist Church, Plaistow and in the Furber Memorial Chapel, Somersworth, N. H.

Mrs. Chapman was prominent in local affairs and at the time of her death was vice president of the Parent Teachers Association and vice president of the Womans Auxiliary, Carl G. Davis Post, American Legion.

She was born in North Berwick, May 24, 1894, the daughter of John and Minnie (Ferguson) McIntire. She was graduated from the Somersworth High School and later taught in the Newmarket, N. H. schools. She married Captain Chapman August 27, 1919.

She is survived by her husband, four children, Kenelm, Franklin, Betty and Jean; also her mother, a sister, Mrs. Raymond Wentworth, Nashua, N. H., and two brothers, Scott McIntire, Minneapolis, Minn., and Bradford McIntire, Durham, N. H.

MERCHANT MARINE

Observe Maritime Day

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, will participate in the ceremonies scheduled for May 22 as part of the second annual observance of Maritime Day. Maritime Day was inaugurated last year to commemorate the sailing of the S. S. Savannah, first steamship to cross the ocean. Mrs. Roosevelt will plant a tree in Corlears Park, New York, where the pioneer ocean steamship was constructed in 1818. The tree will be sent from Savannah, Ga., from which port the vessel set out on her historic voyage.

The New York observance will be one of some 50 meetings to be held throughout the country.

Civic and State officials, maritime leaders and representatives of various patriotic organizations will also take part in the Corlears Hook ceremony. Among them will be Rear Adm. F. R. Lackey, who will represent Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

Exercises in connection with Maritime Day also will be held at New London, Conn., where Stevens Rogers, navigating officer of the Savannah, is buried. These exercises will be held on Sunday, May 20. The speakers will be Governor Wilbur F. Cross, of Connecticut; R. J. Baker, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association, of New York; H. Gerrish Smith, president, National Council of American Shipbuilders, New York; John H. Brinckerhoff, Grand Master of Connecticut, F. & A. M., of Stamford; Donald Cowan, Worshipful Master of Union Lodge, and John A. Harvey, Worshipful Master of Brainard Lodge, both of New London. A. E. MacKinnon, secretary of the Maritime Day

Committee of the National Maritime League, will serve as chairman. Officers and men of the Coast Guard Academy will also participate, under Captain Randolph Ridgely, jr., commandant, while music will be offered by the Academy band.

Navy Promotion Bill Passes

uted on a percentage basis: 1 per cent admirals; 4 per cent captains, 8 per cent commanders, 15 per cent lieutenant commanders, 30 per cent lieutenants, 42 per cent lieutenants (junior grade) and ensigns.

"The distribution in the grades of the officers is as follows: Rear admirals, 55; Captains, 220; Commanders, 440; Lieutenant commanders, 825; Lieutenants, 1,650; Lieutenants (junior grade) and ensigns, 2,300.

"This authorized strength and the percentages were considered appropriate when they were first established, and when the Navy was made up mostly of large ships; however, since that time the proportion of small ships to large ships has materially increased. This relative increase in the number of smaller ships as well as keeping abreast of the latest development in fire control, radio, and other highly technical improvements on our combatant vessels will require an increase in the authorized strength as well as a comparative change in the distribution of officers in the various ranks of the Navy.

"It being recognized that for their relative size small ships require a different proportion of officers in certain grades than would be required on a battleship; however, this particular question is not under consideration now; nevertheless, it is closely related, and in passing I might say that this matter will be given serious study by the Committee on Naval Affairs during the next Congress."

"Does that mean that the gentleman expects to come in with a bill probably next year for redistribution in grade and rank?" asked Representative Goss of Conn., a member of the House Military Committee.

"That is my thought," answered Mr. Vinson.

"As well as a further authorization in reference to the line officers," returned Mr. Goss.

"Exactly," replied the Naval Committee Chief.

About the only opposition expressed to the bill came from Representative Taber, Rep. of N. Y., who sponsored the so-called Taber amendment of two years ago which would have done away with crediting officers of the services with constructive service for pay purposes.

"Frankly, I feel that the number of officers of the line that you would have in the Navy would be so large that you would not give them proper training and they would not be half as efficient as they would be if you stick to the requirements of the law and have your 5,400," he said.

"There is one other feature of a minor character that I desire to go into for a moment or two. That is the provision for the selection of officers from the grade of junior lieutenant to lieutenant. I am inclined to question whether or not the flag officers of the Navy who make up the selection board, namely, the admirals, will have acquaintance enough with the junior lieutenants to make this selection. I am inclined to doubt that those officers will have come enough to the attention of these flag officers so that the flag officers will have a proper judgment on them, and I doubt whether or not promotions should be made by selection from junior lieutenant to lieutenant."

Representative Britten, who spoke in favor of the bill, answered Representative Taber as follows:

"I can understand that there is a controversial element in the provision that the young lieutenant may go out in 7 years. Josephus Daniels told me the other day that this selection-up bill, going down as it does to lieutenant is a good bill, and that he hoped it would pass. He said that even 5 years was plenty of time to determine a young officer's qualifications. It would be plenty of time in any large commercial or industrial institution."

Representative Oliver of Alabama, spoke on the bill:

"There are many lieutenants in the Navy now, who, because existing law provides a different pay scale for officers falling in a certain class or group, are receiving much higher pay than other lieutenants," he said. "There are some lieutenants, for instance, who are today receiving more than $6,500, including allowances, which, in many instances, is much higher than many commanders are receiving, and more than some captains under whom these lieutenants serve. I think the statement was made that in one of the ship groups on the western coast last year, there were 20 lieutenants, serving under an admiral in the lower grade, who were receiving higher pay than the admiral. Now, of course, such disparity of pay seriously disturbs the morale of the Service.

"The effect of this bill will be that at the proper time many of these officers will be retired in a way that is absolutely fair and just to them. For instance, some now receiving over $6,500, would be retired at $3,375, even though they are still lieutenants. This is due to a strange and unusual pay bill passed in 1922, and which someone has said would require a week's hard study to understand, but which I think will require 2 weeks of hard study to interpret. By reason of the pay bill passed in 1922, one scale of pay was given to the officers then in the Service and an entirely different scale of pay was fixed for those who came into the Service after July 1, 1922. I might put it even stronger. There is one scale of pay for those who came into the Navy Service from the Naval Academy after June 30, 1917, and an entirely different scale of pay for many who came into the Service from the academy prior to that time, and for some who were taken into the Service in 1920 through channels other than the Naval Academy. The selective feature of the bill is most important and it is pleasing to note that as to this there seems to be a unanimity of sentiment. I regret that lack of time will prevent me from discussing the pay bill of 1922, to which I filed a minority report at the time of its adoption.

Present DFC

The Secretary of War presented the Distinguished Flying Cross (Oak Leaf Cluster) to Capt. Albert F. Hegenberger, A.C. at the Army War College, Friday morning, May 18, 1934. The citation for the Oak Leaf Cluster is as follows:

"For extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flights. By his initiative, energy and courage Captain Hegenberger rendered exceptionally valuable services to the Government of the United States in the execution of a series of aerial flights culminating with a solo instrument flight and landing on May 9, 1932, in connection with the testing and development of the Air Corps system of Instrument Flying and Landing."

The Army Band and the 3rd Battalion, 12th Infantry, took part in the ceremony. Lt. Col. L. A. Kunzig, 12th Infantry, was in command.

Chief of Inf. Visits Ft. Sill

Ft. Sill, Okla. — Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, Chief of Infantry, and Col. Charles W. Weeks, Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., are expected to arrive here on the afternoon of May 15.

General Croft will spend several days visiting the Field Artillery School and Colonel Weeks will confer with the heads of the various departments of the Field Artillery School.

Air Corps Board

The Special Committee (Air Corps), which convened May 14 after having recessed May 12-13, completed the second phase of its study on May 16. Following a thorough study of Air Mail operations by the Army Air Corps, as the first phase of its inquiry, the Committee next devoted its attention to researching the development of commercial aviation since 1926. The Committee considered the development in airplanes, in engines and in fuel, with particular consideration to performance. Predictions for future development received careful attention. The Committee has constantly in mind constructive improvement of the Army Air Corps.

The Committee was fortunate in this phase of its study in securing the cooperation of many technical experts who covered a wide field of knowledge. These men, at the request of the Committee, gave of their time and effort, at their own expense, in order to further the constructive efforts of the Committee.

During this period the Committee has heard the following witnesses: Mr. R. H. Fleet, Mr. E. G. Hamilton, Mr. James P. Murray, Mr. E. V. Rickenbacker, Mr. E. P. Warner, Mr. V. E. Clark, Mr. Glenn L. Martin, Dr. J. C. Hunsaker, Lt. Richard Aldworth, Ret., Dr. C. F. Taylor, Dr. F. B. Jewett, Mr. C. B. Kirkham, Mr. Hamilton Foley, Honorable F. Trubee Davison, Col. J. Carroll Cox, Mr. R. W. Schroeder, Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, Maj. Gen. George V. H. Mosely, Maj. Gen. Irving J. Carr, Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, Lt. Col. J. K. Crain, Capt. Albert F. Hegenberger, Capt. E. J. House.

With its prior study as a background, the Committee is now commencing the third phase of its study, which contemplates a searching inquiry into the development of the Army Air Corps under the Act of 1926 (H. R. 10827).

Army Blind Flying to Continue

With the recent discontinuance of Army air mail operations over routes 17 and 18 between Newark, Chicago and Oakland, Calif., the Air Corps was forced to abandon a very ambitious plan it had in progress for the installation of instrument or blind landing stations across the American continent.

The Air Corps recently completed and placed into practical use the only instrument landing system which proved itself by actual performance. Experiments in instrument or blind landings had been conducted by the Air Corps over a long period of time. The system reached such a degree of practicability that it warranted the training of pilots in its use, and some of them had been no trained before the Army took over the air mail. Because of the lack of sufficient instrument landing equipment, the number of pilots trained to make instrument landings was extremely limited when the Air Corps took over the operation of the air mail. A project was immediately formulated to train additional pilots and to initiate steps looking to the eventual installation on all planes on the transcontinental route between Newark and Oakland, of instrument landing equipment as well as the establishment of ground installations for instrument landings at the main terminals of that route.

One of the tests required of Army Air Corps pilots training at Wright Field is to fly a triangular 500-mile trip between Dayton, Cleveland and Goshen, during which time the pilot is completely hooded, having no visual reference whatever outside of the cockpit. The initial take-off from Wright Field is made under the hood by the use of instruments, and the landing on the return is made completely blind through the use of the Army instrument landing system. The radio compass used in connection with the Army system is known as the Kruess Loop and was developed by Mr. Geoffrey G. Kruess, who is an employee of the Air Corps at the Materiel Division.

The Air Corps is now equipping all of its new Bombardment airplanes for instrument landing and it is planned that all main permanent airdromes of the Air Corps will be equipped with the ground installation for instrument landings.

Fleet Ball

The Fleet Ball, which takes place in New York City on June 1, will undoubtedly be the greatest gathering of Annapolis Alumni which has ever taken place. The New York Association of about 450 members are leaving no stone unturned to make it a really gala occasion, and in this they will be assisted by the Alumni Association of Philadelphia and other cities.

The entire ball room suite of the hotel with its capacity of over 4,000 has been engaged. Dancing will take place in a large ball room to the music of two of New York's greatest society orchestras who will alternate and the music will be continuous from 10:00 P. M. to the wee small hours.

A feature which will make the ball a truly alumni affair is that each class since 1882 is engaging a suite of rooms for the occasion where the members of their classes may gather and fraternize with their class mates from the fleet, some of whom they may not have seen for many years.

New York society is showing the greatest of interest in the ball, in acting as sponsors and engaging boxes. The President will be represented by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt and the other great Roosevelt President will be represented by Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, one time Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mr. Kermit Roosevelt. Other sponsors are: Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mr. J. P. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. Arthur Curtis James, Mr. and Mrs. Junius Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton. The Honorable and Mrs. F. H. LaGuardia, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Gov. Moore of New Jersey, Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, Hon. and Mrs. Samuel Seabury.

Shortly after midnight, a grand march will take place, the march to be lead by the oldest graduate present and in regular order will follow the various classes down to the infants of 1934 who graduate the day before at Annapolis.

The Ball will have a decided military flavor as all officer guests will be requested to wear their uniforms and those in civilian life whose uniforms are moth eaten or have been outgrown will wear their medals. Army officers attending the ball, in courtesy to their hosts, will wear their uniforms.

The special committee in charge of the ball is composed of the following: Hon. Herbert L. Satterlee, Honorary Chairman, Rear Adm. Reginald R. Belknap, '91, President, N. A. G. A., Chairman; Lt. Comdr. E. D. Langworthy, '10, Secretary; Mr. Scott Lamb, '19, Treasurer; Rear Adm. P. F. Harrington, '63, Mr. Edward J. Berwin, '69, Rear Adm. Bradley J. Fiske, '74, Mr. Frank J. Sprague, '78, Mr. William L. B. Emmet, '81, Mr. John H. Barnard, '83, Mr. Sidney Z. Mitchell, '83, Comdr. William H. McGrann, '91, Capt. John K. Robinson, '91, Mr. Henry Gerrish Smith, '91, Capt. Earl P. Jessop, '96, Mr. Leigh C. Palmer, '96, Mr. Everitt J. Sadler, '99, Mr. Earle Farwell, '05, Mr. B. L. Dombrowski, '14, Mr. C. C. Vickrey, '15, Mr. J. G. Marshall Stone, '17, Mr. T. G. Coast Guard News

The following Coast Guard patrol boats new London, Conn., May 12 bound for designated permanent stations at Great Lakes ports:

Diligence, Boatswain Howard A. White, commanding, Cleveland, O.
Rush, Boatswain Eugene Kiernan, commanding, Chicago, Ill.
Forward, Boatswain Frank C. Herold, commanding, Oswego, N. Y.

Dexter, Boatswain Roland M. Sykes, commanding, Buffalo, N. Y.
Corwin, Boatswain Charles D. Barnes, commanding, Toledo, O.

Wolcott, Boatswain John Hark, commanding, Milwaukee, Wisc.

Perry, Boatswain Thomas G. Woolard, commanding, Green Bay, Wisc.

Dallas, Boatswain Norman H. Church, commanding, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Nansemond, Boatswain Rolf Thorsen, commanding, Marquette, Mich.

The Coast Guard 165-foot Patrol Boat Argo, in command of Lt. Com. Beckwith Jordan, is now anchored in the approximate position formerly occupied by the Nantucket Shoals Lightship, which was rammed and sunk by the British steamer Olympic. The Argo will act in the place of the lightship until a relief lightship arrives, will display a bright white light at the foretruck from sunset to sunrise, in thick weather will sound two blasts of four seconds' duration each on her air whistle and will also send out radio beams.

Arrangements are being made by Headquarters with the American Red Cross to change the latter's regulations so as to place the Coast Guard personnel on the same basis as the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in receiving aid. Under present rules, members of the other three services and their families are eligible for certain medical aid and other relief, and it has been believed by Red Cross officials that they could not extend this to the Coast Guard under the law. Headquarters has gone into the matter and shown that existing law did permit it and at final negotiations are now being made toward this end.

General MacArthur Sues

General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the Army, this week brought libel suit for $1,750,000 against the Washington Times and Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, authors of "The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round," a syndicated feature. General MacArthur charged in his declaration to the court that articles written in the "Merry-Go-Round" column held him up to ridicule and contempt among the officers and men of the Army and the public generally.

This Week—

what will be the effect on the Far Eastern situation if we withdraw our naval force. Think this over, Mr. Secretary of State.

I note in the Army orders an unusual number of officers ordered before retiring Boards. Unquestionably this is in accord with the Collins policy as expressed in the Army Appropriations Act.

The Macon is en route to Sunnyvale. Too bad she was not permitted to join in the Fleet Review. My sympathy to her officers and men, and also to those of the Nevada detached from the Fleet and ordered to return to the Pacific Coast. They will miss a grand spectacle in which they would have been participants.

Medical Reserve Officers

At the request of the office of the Surgeon General of the Army, the Adjutant General of the Army has issued instruction that the Surgeon General be furnished with copies of notifications of assignments and reassignments of Medical Department Reserve Officers and of the specific duties they perform thereunder.

The new instructions were the result of the following memorandum from the Office of the Surgeon General:

"1. In the opinion of this office in order that the maximum degree of preparedness of the Medical Department of the Army for its part in the National Defense may be attained, it is not alone desirable, but practically necessary, that there be constantly maintained in this office a record of the peace-time assignments of Medical Department Reserve Officers, more particularly of those of the Medical officers, for two prime reasons.

"Firstly, there is a greater diversity in the character of the professional services required of medical officers than is indicated for officers of any other branch of the military service. There are approximately thirty separate branches of medicine and surgery, all so highly specialized that each may well be termed a distinct profession. Thus, the demand upon the Medical Department in an emergency can not be met by numbers and grades alone. On very many occasions one particular individual, or selections from among a few, will best meet the demand. The responsibility for the manner in which the mission of the Medical Department is carried out rests upon The Surgeon General, and as an asset to him in the discharge of that responsibility this office should have a record of the peace-time assignments of Medical Reserve officers in order that their availability for emergency assignments may be known. There is no doubt that in numerous instances when an emergency does arise many Medical Reserve officers must be at once relieved from their peace-time assignments, and that in other instances the emergency needs will best be met by retaining such officers in their peace-time assignments. For this purpose an assignment record is essential.

"Secondly, the psychology of the medical man in relation to his civilian profession as it is effected by his military service, should be given consideration. His training and experience have set him apart from other professions and avocations as regards human relationships, and while he takes his profession with him into the military service, the exigencies of that service demands a departure from the accustomed manner of its application. Consequently there is much information sought by the Medical Reserve officer new to the military service concerning his prospective duties and status, and by reason of the common professional interests, he naturally looks to the office of The Surgeon General for it. Seldom does a week pass that this office is not consulted by Medical Reserve officers regarding some particular phase of their military status, and quite frequently about their assignments. When this office is obliged to advise them that it is without information on the subject and refers them to the Corps Area Commander there comes to them the impression that this office lacks a personal interest in their problems."

"2. It is requested, therefore, that this office be furnished with a copy of all assignment orders in the cases of Medical Department Reserve officers."

Planes Return to Panama

Rear Adm. Joseph K. Taussig, USN, Acting Chief of Naval Operations, announced May 15 that VP Squadrons 2, 5, 7 and 9, consisting of 36 Navy patrol planes, of the Aircraft, Base Force, took off from St. Louis Bay, Haiti, at 6:15 that morning and arrived at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, at 1:25 in the afternoon. The flight, which was accomplished in formation, represents a distance of 648 nautical miles.

Commander Harry R. Bogusch, USN, was in command of the flight. VP Squadron 2 consists of 12 Navy patrol planes of the PM-2 type, under the command of Lt. Comdr. Ricco Botta, USN. This squadron is normally based at the Fleet Air Base, Coco Solo.

VP Squadron 5, under the command of Lt. Comdr. H. E. Halland, USN, consists of 12 Navy patrol planes of the P2Y-1 type, similar to the 6 planes which made the recent non-stop flight from San Francisco to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

VP Squadron 7, under the command of Lt. Comdr. F. C. Fake, USN, consists of 6 Navy patrol planes of the PM-1 type. This squadron normally operates under the Commander Aircraft, Base Force. VP Squadron 9, under the command of Lt. Comdr. B. J. Connell, USN, consists of 6 Navy patrol planes of the PM-1 type, attached to the Base Force, U. S. Fleet.

These four squadrons have been operating with the Base Force in connection with the recent maneuvers and war problems in the Caribbean. In addition to the USS Wright, aircraft tender, the following minesweepers used as aircraft tenders have been attached to the Base Force throughout the maneuvers: USS Avocet, Lapwing, Teal and Sandpiper.

National Guard Notes

The comptroller General of the United States has amended his previous ruling regarding the payment of longevity to National Guard officers as follows:

"Where a National Guard officer becomes entitled to increased pay on account of promotion or longevity during the period of the encampment such increase may not be paid."

If a National Guard officer returns to his home station at the termination of the encampment and is subsequently again placed on active duty, the increased pay on account of promotion or longevity to which he became eligible during the period of the encampment may be paid. In other words, any increases which occur during the period of active service may not be paid during such tour of duty.
